

PROMINENT WOMEN KILLED IN SHOCKING AUTO WRECK

Mrs. Chas. Gray, of Jeffersonville, and Miss Sadie Williams, of South Charleston, Instantly Killed at Late Hour Saturday Night When Traction Car Hits Automobile.

TWO OTHERS SERIOUSLY INJURED IN TRAGEDY NEAR SPRINGFIELD

Sam Harris, Colored Chauffeur, Under Arrest, and May Face Charge of Man-slaughter—Claim Made That Man Had Been Drinking Previous to Fatal Accident—Relatives of Victims Reside Here.

Miss Georgiana Blessing, of Jeffersonville in Hospital, Funeral of Mrs. Gray Will Be Held Tomorrow Afternoon. Authorities Will Sift Accident to Bottom and Fix Responsibility for Same.

Late Saturday night the news of another shocking automobile accident in which two persons were instantly killed and others seriously injured, reached relatives of the victims in this city.

The tragedy occurred a few miles south of Springfield when the lives of Mrs. Alta B. Gray, aged 57, of Jeffersonville, and Miss Sadie Williams, aged 60, South Charleston, were snuffed out almost instantly and Miss Georgiana Blessing, 50, also of Jeffersonville, and Sam Harris colored chauffeur, were badly injured when the automobile in which they were riding was struck by a traction car on the Springfield and Washington electric road.

Death overtook the two women about ten o'clock Saturday night, while they were on their way home from Springfield, and as a result of the terrible tragedy, Harris, the chauffeur, is under arrest, the claim being made that he was intoxicated at the time and responsible in a large measure for the accident.

Both women were crushed, cut and bruised in a horrible manner, Mrs. Gray having her skull crushed, both arms broken and body badly mutilated.

Miss Sadie Williams, who had been visiting Mrs. M. E. Corbett of Jeffersonville, and was the guest of Mrs. Gray on the trip to Springfield, had her neck broken, both arms broken and shoulders cut and bruised. She was in the tonneau with Mrs. Gray when the traction car crashed into the automobile.

Miss Georgiana Blessing, who is a sister to Mr. Abe Blessing of Jeffersonville, was in the front seat and escaped the full force of the impact. She was taken to the Springfield hospital, suffering from an extensive scalp wound, many smaller cuts and bruises, and a sprained wrist.

Sam Harris, the colored chauffeur, escaped with a few bruises and cuts, he had been in the employ of Mrs. Gray for four years. A bottle of whiskey, 15 cents and cap were picked up near the wrecked auto.

The accident took place at a crossing about midway between South Charleston and Springfield, and at the point where the traction crosses the pike the car is visible for nearly three-quarters of a mile in either direction. The auto was struck by the traction car while the car was going at terrific speed, and before the motorman could materially reduce the speed of the heavy interurban car. No blame is placed upon the car crew.

The two victims of the wreck have many friends and relatives in this city and county. Mrs. Gray was a sister-in-law of Mrs. Frank G. Carpenter and Mrs. Pope Gregg, and was one of Jeffersonville's best known and wealthiest citizens. Judge Carpenter and wife, and Mrs. Pope Gregg with other relatives went to Springfield to assist in caring for the remains, and returned to Jeffersonville with the remains on the Monday morning D. T. & I. train. Funeral services will be held at the M. E. church in Jeffersonville tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock, and interment will be made in the Jeffersonville cemetery. Owing to her large circle of friends the funeral will be one of the largest ever held in Jeffersonville.

The remains of Miss Williams were left at Springfield, and funeral services will be held Tuesday morning at ten o'clock and interment will be made in the Fletcher cemetery at Springfield.

Miss Georgiana Blessing, who is still in the Springfield hospital, is recovering slowly, and will be able to return home within a few days.

Further details of the fearful accident were given by the Springfield Sun, which says in part:

The large touring car, which was owned by Mrs. Gray, a wealthy widow of Jeffersonville, was driven by her chauffeur, Sam Harris. The members of the party were on their way home from Springfield, where they had been on a shopping and pleasure trip.

The auto had been stopped by the driver as the headlight of the traction car, running late, flashed over the spot that was soon to be the scene of a fatal accident. An instant later Chauffeur Harris started the car across the track and in front of the fast approaching traction car. The heavy traction car crashed into the rear part of the auto knocking the machine to one side of the road and throwing out all the occupants. The rear part of the automobile was torn off, part of the machine falling upon Miss Blessing.

A light rain had been falling. Motorman Floyd Baker, son of George Baker, president of the road, who was in charge of the car, said he was unable to stop on account of the slippery condition of the rails. Mr. Baker said that he had noticed the car stop, and thinking it would wait until he had passed by, only slightly checked the speed of his car.

Following the crash, the car was stopped and the crew hurried to the aid of those in the auto. The two women were found lying some distance from the auto, both probably having been instantly killed. Miss Blessing was helped from under the car, while Harris was rushing around hunting for the members of the party.

All of the dead and injured were brought to this city on the traction car, while the ambulance, patrol wagon and motorcycle officers hurried in that direction to learn the details of the horrible accident.

The traction car was stopped at Johnson avenue and Limestone street and Miss Blessing was taken to the city hospital.

The dead were taken to Jackson's morgue, while Harris was taken to police headquarters in the patrol wagon. A large crowd collected at the traction office, thinking the dead would be brought there, but were disappointed.

Little of the details of the accident could be remembered by Harris when taken to police headquarters. He admitted to the police he had been drinking but said he was not drunk. Motorman Baker said: "As we were coming near Neva's crossing I saw the headlight of a machine only a short distance away. As the track crosses at an angle the driver of the auto could easily see the headlight of the car as he was right in front of it."

"I noticed the car had stopped and thought they were waiting for us to go by. A second later and I saw the auto start out and attempt to cross the tracks in front of the car."

"Instantly I shut off the power and applied the brakes. The tracks were wet and slippery and there was no chance to stop the car. We struck the rear of the machine while going at a fast rate of speed. The pilot of my car was torn off and the rear of the auto was wrecked."

"Going back we helped pick up the members of the party and placed them in the car proceeding to Springfield. Harris ran around hunting for the members of his party. He was too excited to talk and did not know what he was doing."

Monday's Springfield Sun says:

"Sam Harris, colored, chauffeur of the car still remains a prisoner in the county jail, where he is being held for investigation. Detectives Bargdill and Kersteder spent some time yesterday trying to get a connected story of the accident but he could not remember anything about it. Later it was said he began to realize what he had done and was worrying over his situation."

"Coroner Howard Austin called at Jackson's morgue and viewed the bodies yesterday morning and later went to the scene of the wreck in his machine. It is his intention to probe the wreck to the bottom and find out who was responsible for the accident. Within a few days an inquest will be held but the time has not been set yet by Coroner Austin."

"The Maxwell car in which the party had started for home early Saturday night was towed to this city yesterday morning and taken to the Valentine garage on North Fountain avenue. The machine is almost a total wreck, showing that it must have been struck while the traction car was going at a terrific speed."

Among those at the county jail to see Harris during the day were Dr. C. W. Russell and Attorney Will C. W. Keifer, the latter representing the traction company. It was said that Harris admitted he was drinking and did not know where he was when brought back to Springfield. Harris is married and the father of six children. He has been a resident of Jeffersonville for several years.

"It was said that under the new law he might be held for manslaughter in connection with the death of the women. A prominent attorney said last evening that the law was strict regarding a chauffeur drinking while engaged in driving a car."

PREPARE FOR WAR HOPING FOR PEACE

Practically All Nations of Europe Are Feverishly Arranging for Defense in Case of Outbreak, But the Diplomats and Cool-headed Men Are Busy With the "Dove."

RUSSIA CONSIDERS WAR INEVITABLE BETWEEN HERSELF AND THE AUSTRIANS

Greece Stands Ready to Aid the Servians in Case of Hostilities and Will Send One Hundred Thousand Troops Into the Field Against Austria—President Wilson Watching the Developments But Has Not Considered Offering to Move for Peace.

By Associated Press.

London, July 27.—Glimmers of hope flickered in the darkened sky of European politics today and the wish was general that the effort of the great European powers to prevent a clash of arms, which might involve many nations, might be successful. While all the powers were preparing for possible eventualities, their statesmen, with Sir Edward Gray, the British foreign secretary, were endeavoring to bring together the governments at issue with a view to mediation.

At the Servian legation in London the view was held that some improvement had taken place in the situation and this was attributed to influence exercised by Russia. The fact that Austrian ambassadors abroad were willing to discuss the controversial points with foreign governments, and especially with Russia, led to the belief that an outlet for the deadlock would be found.

The stock markets of London and the European capitals still displayed a panicky feeling although it was not as on Saturday. The Italian and German ambassadors here saw Sir Edward Gray this morning but with what results it could not be ascertained. A most serious view of the Austro-Servian situation is taken here. Many of England's diplomatic representatives were on their summer vacations but hurried back at once to their posts.

RUSSIA SURE THERE WILL BE WAR

By Associated Press.

Washington, July 27.—The gravity of the European situation was reflected in an official dispatch from St. Petersburg today saying the Russian minister of war had said he considered war between Russia and Austria almost inevitable. The order for the complete mobilization of the Russian army was confirmed.

President Wilson said today, in answer to inquiries whether the United States would try to bring about peace in Europe, that he had not considered the subject and that the traditional policy of the United States was not to mix in European affairs. He intimated that in the present crisis the United States could do nothing.

GREECE WILL SEND 100,000 MEN

London, July 25.—The Greek minister at Constantinople today declared Greece would be compelled to dispatch 100,000 troops to assist Servia in case of war with Austria-Hungary. Emperor William of Germany returned to Potsdam today from his cruise in northern waters and it is hoped throughout Europe he will throw his influence toward a peaceful settlement of the dispute.

It was said today Austria-Hungary will not move her forces against the Servian capital until tomorrow. All nations of Europe are preparing for war as none wish to be caught napping in case war should start. The North Sea would be England's danger point in the event of a European outbreak. A bitter feeling was noticeable in St. Petersburg today as a result of yesterday's diplomatic conversations.

6,000 TO GO FROM CLEVELAND

Cleveland, July 25.—Six thousand trained Hungarian soldiers, members of the first reserve of the Austro-Hungarian army will go from Cleveland to fight against Servia on the first call to arms.

Peace Preferred By German Government

Will Aid Austria Only In Event of Third Power Intervening.

WOULD LOCALIZE CONFLICT

Count Von Moltke Ready to Touch Button That Will Bring 4,000,000 German Soldiers in the Field—Ser via Unable to Comply With Aus tria's Demands—Hopes Expressed There Will Be No General War.

Vienna, July 27.—The first encounter between Austria and Serbia is reported to have occurred near Semendria, on the Danube, twenty-four miles southeast of Belgrade. Some vessels conveying Austrian infantry were said to have been fired on from the Ser vian side of the Danube, and to have returned the fire.

Berlin, July 27.—The German govern ment issued a note denying the reports printed in Paris and St. Peters burg papers which gave an incorrect statement as to Germany's position. The note reiterated the previous official statement that Germany consid ers the question wholly a matter be tween Austria and Serbia, and be lieves, therefore, that the conflict should remain localized. It added that Germany's entire efforts were in that direction for the purpose of main taining the peace of Europe. The note is a reiteration of the general understanding that Germany will only go to the assistance of Austria if a third power, meaning Russia, inter feres.

In governmental and diplomatic cir cles hope is still expressed that there will be no general war. Some believe that Russia will think twice before plunging Europe into a world war. Others believe the kaiser will find a way, either by a direct appeal to the czar not to mix in, or by calling Aus tria off.

There is a rigid censorship on all telegrams to and from Austria and there are no telephone connections with Vienna. A few telegrams were received here after many hours' delay. A late dispatch from the Austrian cap ital announced that General Putnik, the chief of staff of the Serbian army, had been arrested on a train at Buda pest while en route to Belgrade with his daughter. They were subsequently released.

The Serbian legation here received a telegram from Premier Pashitch de claring that Serbia had gone to the utmost limits possible to comply with Austria's demands. The dispatch an nounced the rupture of diplomatic re lations between the two countries and that the skupshtina (parliament) had been called to meet in extraordi nary session.

In contrast with the excitement of the populace is the cool, calm demean or of the military authorities and their unobtrusiveness. They also say that no preparations are necessary because everything is ready. Count Von Molt ke, chief of the grand general staff, who may touch a famous button that will bring 4,000,000 German soldiers into the field, abruptly ended his cure at Carlsbad and returned to Berlin.

There are few dispatches from the Russian frontier. General Rejen kamp of Japanese war fame, who is now commanding the Villa district, is reported to have been placed in com mand of the army which will operate against Germany.

FAKE MARRIAGE

Cleveland, July 27.—Claiming that she was virtually held a prisoner for three years following a fake marriage ceremony, Apollonia Schimel, twenty, caused the arrest of Joseph Malin, twenty-eight. Malin, she said, abused her and made her supply him with money while he was idle. The woman recently learned that the marriage was illegal, she said.

WASHINGTON IS INTERESTED IN THE WAR FLASH

Washington, July 27.—The develop ments in the Austro-Serbian situation are being watched by official Wash ington with the keenest interest. No event since the warlike period of the Mexican situation has so aroused the capital, and further developments are anxiously awaited. The importance of the situation and its vast possibilities are not underestimated in Washing ton, though this capital has no stake in the game. It is believed that war between Austria and Serbia will have a profound effect on the political situation in west Europe. It is also thought that any upheaval in Europe would be reflected quickly in financial and economic circles in the United States.

PREVENTS RUPTURE

London, July 27.—War has not been declared by either Austria or Serbia. This is said to be due to the influence of the kaiser, who is reported to have made the first move toward prevent ing a general conflagration in Europe.

WILL CLOSE BOURSE

Vienna, July 27.—The governors of the bourse have asked the minister of finance to close the stock exchange for three days. It is feared in Berlin that this will intensify the conditions on the bourse there.

FRANCE IS READY

SERVIAN ARMY IS MOBILIZED

London, July 27.—The Serbian min ister here received a dispatch from Kraguyeratz stating that Crown Prince Alexander, acting as regent, had ordered a general mobilization of the Serbian army.

A CURIOUS WARNING.

It Was a Clever Ruse and Thoroughly Scared the Burglars.

For a time during the eighteenth cen tury in England there was a lull in the robbery industry owing to an odd in cident. Shortly after the execution of an English burglar named Elliston a curious communication purporting to have been written by him was put into circulation.

"Now, as I am a dying man," it ran, "I have done something which may be of good use to the public. I have left with an honest man—the only honest man I was ever acquainted with—the names of all my wicked brethren, the places of their abode, with a short ac count of the chief crimes they have committed, in many of which I have been the accomplice and heard the rest from their own mouths. I have like wise set down the names of those we call our setters, of the houses we fre quent and all of those who receive and buy our stolen goods. I have solemnly charged this honest man and have re ceived his promise upon oath that whenever he hears of any rogue to be tried for robbery or housebreaking he will look into his list and if he finds there the name of the thief concerned to send the whole paper to the govern ment. Of this I here give my com panions fair and public warning and hope they will take it."

It is said the hint was so effectual that for a long time pickpockets and burglars in that part of England went into panic stricken retirement. And, this being so, it is just as well they did not know that the letter was a clever forgery, the work of that prince of wits and humorists, Dean Swift.

HOAXED THE STATESMEN.

And at the Same Time Paul Birault Proved His Proposition.

Paul Birault, a writer on the Paris Eclair, contended that too many stat ues were being erected all over France to obscure heroes, too many official speeches made to celebrate intellectual nonentities, and Radical politicians gen erally are the blindest leaders of the blind.

To prove his theory that this was due to the fact that the living were delig hted by public posing, he invented a ce lebrity to glorify and called him He gesippe Simon. No such man ever ex isted, but he described him in his letter as a most wonderful precursor of mod ern light and progress. To give his let ter a certain importance he headed it with a motto to the following effect, "Darkness fades when the sun rises," representing it as the most remarkable dictum of the remarkable Hegesippe Simon.

Under this glorious motto he placed the title of his bogus committee, which he dubbed "public committee for the celebration of the centenary of He gesippe Simon." He selected the names of 100 Radical deputies in alphabetical order and sent them each a letter, in which he said: "Thanks to the liberal ity of a generous donor, the disciples of Hegesippe Simon are now enabled to erect a statue in his honor. We de sire to inscribe your name as an hon orary member of the committee to ce lebrate the centenary of this great edu cator of democracy."

Birault received letters of accept ance from a large number of deputies, senators and ministers.—St. Louis Post Dispatch.

Blind Obedience.

"I have often wondered," remarked Mrs. Rogers, "how a horse feels. A horse hasn't any idea what is going to happen to him when he is harnessed. He doesn't know how far he is going or what he is going for. To be driven hither and thither, blindly, seemingly without purpose, with no idea of what it's all about or when it will be over—how must the poor creature feel—what must he think about it all?"

"I suppose," said Mr. Rogers wearily, "that he must feel just as I do when you take me on a shopping expedition with you!"—London Mail.

Studied Insult.

"I wish," said the waiter who had been serving the man with the grim face and the pert looking girl, "I could think of some way to get even with that fellow. He complained about ev erything I put on the table and growled about every move I made."

"What did his bill amount to?"

"A dollar and ninety cents."

"And how much money did he hand you?"

"A two dollar bill."

"It's easy. Have it in two nickels when you return his change."—Chica go Herald.

LUXURY IN ARGENTINA.

The Big Story They Tell of a Buenos Aires Hotel Charges.

The hotels of Buenos Aires are fairly good and very expensive. One of the cheapest rooms I saw in the Plaza hotel was $7 a day, European style. There are good Spanish hotels with rooms from $2 a day upward.

The Plaza is, perhaps, the most cosmopolitan of all the hostleries of the city. In its ballroom and its drawing room I was reminded of the Waldorf-Astoria. The meals are a little higher than in the big hotels of New York city. But there are numerous small restaurants where good refreshments may be had at reasonable prices.

As an example of the charges in the big hotels of Buenos Aires I may quote a story told-me by an Argentine official. He said that some years ago a commission of European ambassadors was entertained by the Argentine government at the Bristol hotel on the Avenida de Mayo and that the bill for soap and perfumery was $15,000 a week. Nobody seemed to complain and apparently everybody was satisfied.

Luxuries seem to be necessities to the Argentines, for I was told that the tariff on champagne is only 2 per cent, while that on a plow is 50 per cent.—National Magazine.

WHAT WILL RUSSIA DO?

Berlin, July 27.—All eyes in Ger many are directed toward St. Peters burg. "What will Russia do?" is the question that was asked probably a million times with bated breath and hearts almost standing still in fear the answer will mean the long dreaded war. This was the sole topic in Ber lin and all German cities and towns.

Scenes here were patriotic ones, such as have not been seen since the victorious days of 1870. The city is in an atmosphere of suspense and suppressed emotions. These found an occasional vent in patriotic outbursts, but the general feeling was that the country is on the edge of a volcano. This feeling was intensified by the first war extra of the Lokal Anzeiger, which is known as the kaiser's paper. It was stated in this edition that private reports from St. Petersburg were so serious that the paper would not print them until they had been con firmed.

Monuments of Bismarck, Von Molt ke and Von Roon and the Column of Victory were the gathering places of the people of Berlin. The principal streets were a mass of moving human ity, especially in Unter den Linden.

Speaking of "Grandpa"

Periodically the mother, the father and the mother-in-law each are brought forward as the subject of discussion in prose and in verse. Some literary light, and it matters not whether he be obscure or famous, starts the discussion and the subject chosen travels the rounds.

Just now "grandpa" is the subject of word sketch and comment—mostly favorable of course—in the press both by editors and contributors.

Since the subject has been suggested, grandpa is a grand character. He has more sympathy with youth, enters more heartily into the every day life of the boys and girls, seems to understand better what they want and is very much more lenient than father is, in fact very much more of a companion with his grandchildren than even he was as a father, grandpa is the champion of the grandchild in almost every case from the cradle on through life.

Grandpa seems to know just what the grandchild wants and he usually succeeds as a confederate in bringing every wholesome thing around just as the grandchild desires even, if necessary, forming a secret alliance to accomplish it.

Grandpa is at once the admiration of the youngsters and the despair of the parents. The father and mother cannot, as a rule, understand how grandpa can be so indulgent when as a father he was so severe.

But, after all is said and done, that is not such a difficult problem to solve. Generally speaking grandpa's working days are over. He has time to enjoy the children and take an interest in them. He is with them hours where the father can only spare a few minutes. He lives in the present and in the past—the joys of life are his chief concern, he is through worrying about the future and has learned in the school of life that fighting against the inevitable is as hopeless a task as it is a wearing one, while father is kept busy every minute of the day, if he amounts to much, providing for the family and laying aside a few pennies for the rainy day. Father's mind is crowded to capacity with the stern problems of life and in wrestling a living from the world. The children are to be provided for and that takes all of his energy and thought.

What more natural, more beautiful, more ideal, after the father, by all the rules of this game of life, is barred from that companionship with his children, which natural love demands, should spend the twilight of life in the full enjoyment of that happy state which comes only to grandfathers.

Perhaps grandfather does carry it a little to extremes—a little farther than is good for the discipline of the child, in the estimation of the parents—but doesn't he have a good time though?

And don't the children think grandpa is just about all right?

Sum it all up, isn't grandfather about all right in the majority of instances? He's in for anything and the little disappointments which fret and annoy father have no more effect on him than water on a duck's back. He is resourceful and can adopt himself to almost any circumstance.

No wonder grandpa is such a prime favorite in every household.

He deserves to be just as popular as he is and there is not nearly so much danger that he will "spoil" the grandchildren as anxious parents fear.

Grandpa deserves all the adoration which loving grandchildren bestow upon him—he delivers the real goods.

Childhood without a "grandpa" is a desert. Any child who has not had a "grandpa" has missed a good deal of the real joy of life.

Education Not Result of Haphazard Growth

By Professor L. M. PASSANO of Massachusetts Institute of Technology

THE advocates of the scientific management of education have not sufficiently studied the conditions of the problem and do not understand the problem, even from their own viewpoint. Modern educational institutions and methods are not a fortuitous result of haphazard growth. They are the result of the study and experience of many generations of men.

THE SCIENTIFIC MANAGERS WOULD REPLACE EXPERIENCE BY EXPERIMENT. THEY ARE QUITE SURE THEY CAN FUNCTIONALIZE STUDENT AND TEACHER INTO CONTINUAL ACTIVITY, APPARATUS INTO PERPETUAL MOTION AND FLOOR SPACE INTO CONTINUOUS USE. LIKE THE SUBURBANITE, THEY WILL MAKE TWO BLADES OF GRASS GROW WHERE ONLY ONE OUGHT TO.

Must Point Way to Emancipation of Classes

By Rabbi STEPHEN S. WISE of New York

ABRAHAM LINCOLN fought a battle against caste, and that is what we must do today to obtain a purer brand of democracy. Lincoln obtained the freedom of a race; we must point the way to the emancipation of the classes.

BY CLASSES I MEAN NOT ONLY THE RICH AS DISTINGUISHED FROM THE POOR, BUT THE MAN WHO HAS A COLLEGE EDUCATION AS DISTINGUISHED FROM THE MAN THAT NEVER HAD THAT OPPORTUNITY. COLLEGES NEED TO BE REFORMED ABOUT AS MUCH AS ANY INSTITUTIONS I KNOW IF THE MEN GRADUATING FROM THEM ARE GOING TO BE EQUIPPED TO TAKE PART IN THE "UP-LIFT."

If I were a college president the students would not fritter away their time spending $10,000 a year.

Poetry For Today

THE CRICKET'S SONG.

When the birds have left the woodland,
And the flowers begin to fade;
When the twilight shadows lengthen
In the meadow and the glade;
There's a merry little singer
That whene'er your footsteps pass,
Sends a cheery note of greeting
From his home down in the grass:

Just a common little cricket,
Brown and lowly, it is true;
But there's meaning in the message
That he has for me and you;
Don't forget to sing, my brother,
Just because the summer's o'er;
That's the time to sound your praises,
Even louder than before.

"Hear me down among the grasses
Brown and sere, that once were green.
You'd most think I'd be discouraged
When I view the barren scene
But the song—that's worth the singing
Can be sung when skies are drear
Just as well as in the brightness
Of the springtime of the year."

Wanted to Be Safe.

Tom Jackson had participated in a narrow escape from death, due to an accident which happened while he was crossing to Liverpool. It was, therefore, with much fear and hesitancy that he decided to return home.

Approaching the porter hurriedly at the last minute, he was told that he was too late for a stateroom. "The last one was just taken," announced that worthy.

"Stateroom?" queried the frightened passenger. "Who wants a stateroom? Give me a reserved seat in a lifeboat."—Buffalo Express.

A Painful Process.

Little Prescott had been leaning out of an upstairs window.

"Come away from the window, son," his father said sternly. "You might fall out and get a bump on your back—like the camels you saw yesterday."

The little boy was silent for a few minutes. Then he asked, "Father, do all the little camels have to fall out the window to get their humps?"—New York Post.

Argued Too Long.

"Why did you permit yourself to be drawn into a long argument with your assailant?" asked the policeman.

"A long dispute was just what I was trying to avoid when I called him a liar," explained the man on the hospital cot.—Buffalo Express.

Too Soon and Too Late.

"What became of that play you wrote five years ago?"

"The managers decided it was too daring to produce."

"Send it on again."

"I did. They say it's too tame now."

M'ADOO TO LOAN CASH

Will Offer Millions to Banks on Generous Terms.

Washington, July 27.—Secretary of Treasury McAdoo is going to repeat his crop loan stunt of last year. He announced that he had decided to offer the national banks of the country for the use in crop movement and other legitimate business $34,000,000 from the general fund of the treasury. The loans are to be available immediately. Interest at the rate of 2 per cent a year will be charged for them. The offered amount will be increased if necessary.

The crop loans this year are to be conditioned even more generously than last year. Government, state, municipal and railroad bonds, acceptable to the secretary, and approved commercial paper will be accepted as security at 75 per cent of their face value, and no requirement will be made, as was done last year, that 10 per cent of the deposits be secured by government bonds.

Mr. McAdoo announced at the end of the last crop moving period that an immense benefit had been conferred upon the country by the government's loans.

LIGHTSHIP PERILS.

Safety of the Vessel and Its Crew Is the Last Consideration.

Among the unsung heroes of this country are the members of the light-house service, which is entirely distinct from the life saving service. The entire lighthouse corps designed to warn ships of danger points covers 100,000 miles of coast line and reaches from Alaska to Panama. The maintenance of it costing approximately $6,000,000 a year. It has about 13,000 "aids to navigation," including light-houses, lightships, bell buoys, tenders, submarine signals, and fog signals.

A lightship must be kept always in one particular place. Anchored to the bottom of the sea, she has her steam always up, but she never sails unless relieved by another ship so that she may put into port for repairs. And such a boat is used because a warning must be given at a place where it is impossible to build a lighthouse and where even the clamor of a gigantic bell buoy is not sufficient to warn the navigator. No matter how fiercely the storm beats or how desperate may be the boat's plight, she must stay at her moorings. The only movement she is allowed to make under the regulations is to sink when at last she can withstand the gale no longer.

Throughout the service, both in the lightships and on the vessels, there is one object, one dominating creed—to keep the light burning and the whistle blowing. This is the supreme work of the men's existence. And it would bring them deserved recognition if the government ever published a list of those who have lost their lives in the line of such perilous duty.

For about $6,000,000 a year these men and their craft save from disaster the billions of dollars' worth of shipping and commerce that come to American shores.—Popular Magazine.

An Excellent Reason.

One of the stories about the late Sir Douglas Straight, the veteran journalist, relates to one of the early papers he was connected with.

He was crossing Waterloo bridge one day with a friend when he suddenly marched up to a couple of newsboys and soundly boxed their ears.

His friend, amazed at this proceeding, naturally asked him what he meant by it. "They were selling your paper," he pointed out.

"Yes, I know they were," was the reply. "but they weren't shouting it loud enough!"—London Globe.

The avarice of the miser may be termed the grand sepulcher of all his other passions.

SUNDAY QUARREL ENDS IN MURDER ON J. H. ALLEN FARM

Sheriff South, Deputy and Coroner, of Clinton County, Summoned From This City Yesterday Afternoon to Locate John Williams, Wanted for Murder of Frank Stradley on "Doc" Allen Farm.

Sheriff Ben South, the deputy sheriff and the Coroner of Clinton county, who were in this city to attend the ball game Sunday afternoon, were hurriedly summoned to take up their official duties in Western Clinton where Frank Stradley, 30, was shot and almost instantly killed by John Williams, who resides on the 700 acre farm of J. H. Allen of this city.

The shooting occurred early in the afternoon, and was the result of a quarrel over some money which Stradley claimed was due him from Williams. It is claimed that Williams, who is 60 years of age, shot Stradley in the back of the head as Stradley was in the act of going into the house. His wife heard the shot and rushed to the door to find her husband's body.

Sheriff South and his deputy hurried from this city to the scene, but found that Williams had disappeared, and with a posse of citizens from the neighborhood in which the crime was committed, he started a search for the missing man, but up to latest reports had not located him.

The Allen farm is midway between Midland City and Blanchester, and Williams was one of several tenants who reside on the farm. He is formerly from Pike county and has a large family.

The dead man was also employed on the Allen farm, and leaves a widow and five small children. He was 30 years old.

It is claimed that immediately after the shooting Williams ran to his house, told his wife of the trouble, and left at once for parts unknown. The delay occasioned by the presence of the officers in this county allowed the man to escape.

RAIN PUTS HOOKS INTO BALL GAME

Fifteen Hundred Persons Huddle together in Grandstand, Along Fences and on Verandas of Neighborhood While Liveliest Shower of Season Coaxes the Grain Crops and Makes Puddle Out of Ball Diamond—Game Stopped After First Inning.

Fifteen hundred persons, disappointed and generally miserable, packed like so many sardines in the grand stand and along the fences at the ball park Sunday afternoon during the heavy showers and on verandas all along Columbus avenue, could be found small knots of foiled fans who huddled together in an effort to thwart the driving mist and who lifted their voices in concert against one Jupiter Pluvius who had no consideration of a championship game of ball.

The afternoon started off bright and sunny and of the fans who were taken in by the friendly attitude of the elements nearly seventy-five per cent were at the park before 2 o'clock. Of these a fourth at least represented Wilmington supporters and fans from all along the line. The game started shortly after 2 o'clock with a warm sun, a clear sky, and everything favorable. A few minutes later a solid mass of black storm clouds, coming apparently from nowhere in particular and with an amazing suddenness, overspread the sky and the downpour started at the conclusion of the first inning. Five hundred other fans who were not aware of the fact that the game would start earlier than usual had not yet started for the park and were spared the wrath of Jupiter.

After the first hard shower an effort was made to get the diamond in shape again but another and more severe downpour put an end to this. The ball park had the appearance of a hog wallow and many of the crammed fares in the grand stand were soaked through by the rain which blew through the netting at the front and sides.

Hundreds of shoes, fancy stockings and socks, silk shirts and gowns, debutante hats and other apparel in made suffered the rage of the weather god and many a shop girl and soda clerk will have to go on diet in Washington for a few weeks to replenish their wardrobes.

The Wilmington players left Sunday evening and with them their loyal but dejected supporters. They were sorely disappointed but perhaps no more so than the local fans and it is to be hoped they will re-

SERIOUS ACCIDENT NEAR MT. STERLING

An ugly motorcycle accident occurred near Mt. Sterling, late Saturday afternoon, when two unknown men were badly injured when the motorcycle they were riding, went into the ditch.

The men were discovered by Doan Powless and Burnett Hyer, of this city, and they rendered assistance to the pair of unfortunate cyclists.

When found one of the men was still in the ditch in an unconscious condition, while the other was standing in the middle of the road signaling for help. The man in the ditch had his skull fractured, it is claimed, while the other had one wrist broken, his chin all but cut off and a ragged scalp wound. Both were covered with blood, and were taken to Mt. Sterling, where medical attention was rendered.

The man who was not unconscious stated that it was his machine, and that the man behind had dropped one foot down upon the road, causing the cycle to swerve into the ditch.

COUNTY SCHOOL BOARD HOLDS FIRST MEETING

A lengthy meeting of the County Board of Education was held at the court house Saturday night, most of the time being occupied with discussions, little business being transacted, and arrangements being made for a meeting at the court house at one o'clock next Saturday afternoon, when members of the various boards of Education in the county will be present, and the matter of districting the county will be taken up.

All members were present, with President Wilson Morris in the chair. The meeting opened at eight o'clock. County Superintendent Frank M. Allen was secretary of the board.

Following the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting, member W. E. Smith, of Milledgeville, presented a petition signed by F. E. Hidy, U. G. Rankin, Ed. Sheridan, C. C. Andrews, Phil. Uhrig and A. B. Johnson—all presidents of boards of education, asking for the resignation of President Morris. The petitioners stated that they had voted for Mr. Morris with the belief that he would support a certain candidate for County Superintendent, and had not done so.

He moved that the Board join the petitioners in the demand for the resignation of Mr. Morris. Member Minnick seconded the motion, and the matter was argued at considerable length, and resulted in the president ruling the motion out of order. The minutes, which were admitted to be a correct record of the previous proceedings, were eventually approved. Morris, Long and Wilson voting to approve, and Smith and Minnick against the approval.

The objections of Member Smith were made part of the record of the meeting. The question of what should be done toward districting the county was then taken up, and discussed, with the result that it was decided to hold a meeting Saturday afternoon and go into the details more thoroughly.

PRESENCE OF MIND SAVES AGED WOMAN

Mrs. Agnes Hartman, 82, was painfully burned at her home on Court street Saturday evening while attempting to brush off some gasoline which had escaped from a tank overhead, from the base of a gasoline stove. The paper ignited and instantly the arms of the aged woman were enveloped in flames.

Before the flames could burn deeply into the flesh she had smothered them in her skirts. Her injuries, while painful, are not serious.

FUNERAL SERVICES OF MRS JANE OGLE

Mrs. Mary Jane Ogle, second daughter of Aseneth and Samuel F. Yeoman, pioneer residents of this city, who died at the old homestead place on Washington Avenue Thursday morning, was laid to rest at sunset Saturday evening.

Simple and beautiful services, in accordance with her wishes, were conducted by Rev. A. W. West of the First Baptist church, in the same room in which Mary Jane Yeoman had been married to Theodore Ogle in 1857.

The funeral was private, with only close friends gathered around the quiet sleeper and by request only the flowers used were those which bespoke the affection of her nearest and dearest.

The pastor read the scriptures which Mrs. Ogle had chosen, part of the Fourteenth Chapter of John and the Twenty-third Psalm, and at the Washington Cemetery, where the burial was made in the family lot, read Tennyson's hymn, "Crossing the Bar."

The pall bearers were Mr. F. D. McKinniss, of Marion, Dr. R. M. Hughey, Messrs Frank L. Stutson, D. T. McLean, Roy Haglar and Sherman Bishop.

Four children of the seven which were born to Mr. and Mrs. Ogle, survive their mother, Comly, Joseph, Earle and Grace, and all were present for the sunset farewell.

Mrs. Harry Matthews and children of Columbus, are the guests of Mrs. Matthews' mother, Mrs. Belle Smith, enroute to Chicago, where they join Mr. Matthews to make their future home.

Care of Pearls.

One of the representatives of a famous jewelry firm gives a word of advice upon the preservation and treatment of pearls. Upon no account, he said, should they be locked up in a safe or other dark place for lengthy periods, since such treatment soon causes them to lose their "life" and become dull. If their fair owners find that for some reason or other they cannot wear them outside their garments they should make a point of wearing them underneath the dress next to the skin. Constant contact with the human skin gives to the stones light, luster, gloss and sheen. The best possible way to keep the pearls in a perfect state of preservation, as well as to prolong their life, is to wear them always, both by night and by day.—London Tit-Bits.

The Cruel Lie.

When Disraeli was nearing his end a young disciple said to him: "Master, what is the unpardonable sin? Is it not a lie?" The astute and subtle statesman, in the shadow of the grave, where he saw with the clearer vision, looked at the young man with deep, unfathomable eyes and answered: "No, a lie is not the unpardonable sin. The unpardonable sin is the cruel lie."

On the borders of that shadowy land where great things grow small and little things loom large on the horizon he had come to know that the crime that is not forgiven is the brutal instinct that impels us to wound, to embitter, to mortify.

PRESS PAYS TRIBUTE TO LATE REV. ARCHIBALD ROSS

Funeral services of the late Rev. Archibald Ross, D. D., LL. D., father of Rev. Frederick E. Ross, of this city, were held from the Bushwick Congregational church, 100 Avenue C, Brooklyn, N. Y., and interment was made in the Evergreens Cemetery, Brooklyn.

In the death of Rev. Ross Brooklyn lost one of her best known and most loved citizens, and a man whose name was by no means confined to the brief history of his life, which is from the Newtown Register, of Thursday, July 23:

"The recent death of Rev. Archibald Ross, D. D., of Brooklyn, removes from the religious and literary life of the city a character of rare interest.

"He was best known to the residents of the old town of Newtown through the interesting and instructive articles which appeared from time to time in the Register, and by his self-sacrificing and noble religious work in the Middle Village. "When he came to that community some 25 years ago as pastor of the Methodist church, he found that church society in a very run-down condition and almost dead, so much so that the entire abandonment of the church was being seriously considered.

"Mr. Ross went to work with such vigor that he soon inspired others, and with him as their leader the church officers rallied to the rescue and the church was soon restored to its oldtime vigor. He labored for several years in Middle Village, and it is largely owing to his untiring efforts that the church is now in its present flourishing condition.

"Dr. Ross was born in Charlotte-town, Prince Edwards Island, in 1835. Educated in private and public schools in Canada, he studied theology in Queens' University, Kingston, Canada, and subsequently entered the ministry of the Presbyterian Church. Coming with his family to New York in 1876, he supplied several well known pulpits and became active in platform work.

"Never robust in health, he was compelled to renounce the work of the ministry, devoting his time intermittently to newspaper and literary work. He will be recalled as a frequent contributor to the Standard and Union, Evening Post, Newtown Register, and other papers. His literary attainments were large, his insight almost unerring, his range broad and his style at once racy and luminous. If at times abrupt and remote, it was because of his marked philosophical bias.

"However, he possessed the rare faculty of translating philosophy into terms of life, and this was one of the secrets of his power as a writer. "He was of Highland Scotch descent, possessing all the fire and fervor of the Celt. Steeped in the spirit and letter of English poetry, he early acquired a style marked by purity and elevation of thought. His muse was refined and vigorous and his art never sank to the level of art for art's sake. To him poetry was the hand maid of religion, and what God had joined together he dare not put asunder.

"In 1904 he issued "Duty and Others Poems," a volume of surpassing poetic interest and power. On almost every page there are gems of truth fit to be inscribed among the classics of the English language. Some of the most noted poems in this volume are: "Duty," "Hope," "Charity," "Cygnus," "The Soul's Up-look," "The Response," "William of Orange," etc.

"A later volume was called "Life Sketches," a series of fascinating incidents, journeys afoot, anecdotes, etc. There is life and color on every page of the book and no one can read it without seeing the author possessed literary genius of a high order.

"Like most poetic temperaments Dr. Ross was wanting in business capacity. The commercial spirit was foreign to his nature, and his talents were never properly recognized or capitalized. It is freely conceded that only this lack of a business faculty prevented him from acquiring large means.

"His 'Philosophy of Deep Breathing' was a well-matured utterance on the health value of proper breathing and walking exercises. Twenty-five years later a gentleman of the medical profession traversed the same ground—not exactly a pioneer.

"He was widely known as a pedestrian. Walking to him was a genuine pleasure, for many years it being his rule to walk from five to ten miles each day. The late Mayor Gaynor is said to have taken up the practice of extensive walking largely through Dr. Ross' influence.

"As poet, preacher and pedestrian he was an original and virile man. Perhaps his supreme aim for many years was to make others happy. Thousands of humble homes were gladdened by his visits. The little children loved him because of his unfeigned interest in them, and a notable incident of his funeral was a beautiful floral offering from his "countless little friends.

"He leaves behind him three children, Archibald Ross, Jr., Jesse E. Ross, and Rev. Frederick E. Ross, D. D., of the Ohio Methodist Episcopal Conference, a well known minister."

In Social Circles

The beautiful home of Mr. H. K. Stewart, "Spring Hill Farm" was the scene of a delightful surprise party upon the occasion of Mr. Stewart's birthday, Sunday evening.

The affair had been planned by Mrs. Stewart and sister, Miss Lora Martin, about twenty relatives and intimate friends invited and taking Mr. Stewart completely by surprise.

The evening was one of much pleasure, the large grounds and verdant lawns and the always cordial hospitality of the Stewart's so inviting that the guests lingered late in the evening and left wishing their host many happy returns of the day.

A delicious summer collation and a big bowl of punch proved refreshing.

Miss Margaret Fullerton of Columbus was an out of town guest.

Mrs. Will Morgan pleasantly entertained the girls of the Tau Mu Tau club in farewell to her guest, Miss Marie Mobley, of Hope Ark.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Thompson entertained with an elegant dinner on Sunday.

An orange and white color scheme was used in decoration.

Seated with the host and hostess were Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Baughn and son Roy, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hays and son Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Oth Dawson, Mr. S. D. Barr and Mr. Leonard Bass, of Austin.

Mr. and Mrs. Almer Hegler entertained with a very beautiful dinner at their home on the Chillicothe pike Sunday.

A flat design of American beauty roses and fern was singularly effective in table decorations. Seated with the host and hostess were Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Parrett, Mr. Roy Haglar and family, Mr. and Mrs. Val McCoy, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Howat and daughter Miss Jean, Miss Rose McLean, Miss Mary Robinson and guest Miss Katharine McKibben, of Cynthia, Ky., Misses Edith, Mable and Grace Payey, of Columbus, Messrs Howard Haglar and Arthur Staubus, of Orange, etc.

Miss Virginia Campbell entertained the girls of the algonquin club Saturday evening at a handsome six o'clock dinner.

THANKS FOR A FAVOR.

The Lady and the Baker and a Little Bit of a Surprise.

It was after dark, and the French baker was about to close his shop when the telephone bell rang.

"Mr. Owens?"

"Yes, ma'am."

"This is Mrs. Jimley of Hickorynut street."

"Yes, Mrs. Jimley."

"I am giving a supper tonight, and I discover that I need half a dozen more rolls. Could I trouble you to send them over?"

"I'm sorry, ma'am, but I haven't a roll left in the store nor even a loaf of bread. We are sold clear out tonight."

"This is very provoking," said Mrs. Jimley. "Are you sure you haven't anything that would do?"

"There isn't a thing in the place that I would care to sell you, ma'am. Hold on, though. There's a half dozen fresh rolls on my own supper table right now. I could let you have those if you think they would do. My kids can eat crackers instead. They'd rather, anyway."

"Those will do very nicely, Mr. Owens. Will you send them over soon, please?"

"Right away, ma'am. The boy has gone for the night, but I'll take them to you myself."

In a minute or two he stood on her front steps ringing the bell and feeling well pleased with himself that he could do some one a kindness.

Mrs. Jimley opened the door and took the packages from his hands. Then she said in icy tones:

"The next time you bring any goods here, Mr. Owens, I wish you would remember to ring the basement bell. I can't have tradesmen coming to the front door."—Newark News.

He Knew.

"If I were you," his wife said, "I'd go to that man and tell him exactly what I thought of him. He lied to you, and you ought to tell him that you know it. If I were you I'd let him know just how I despised him. I'd have the satisfaction of making him feel ashamed of himself."

"No, my dear," he replied, "you wouldn't do anything of the kind. If you were me you'd do just as I'm doing. This fellow weighs fifty pounds more than I do, and they tell me he's one of the best boxers in this town."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Wyoming Has Many High Mountains.

Wyoming has nine mountains exceeding 13,000 feet in height and of these three approach the 14,000 foot mark, according to the United States geological survey. They are Gannett peak, 13,785 feet; Grand Teton, 13,747 feet, and Fremont peak, 13,730 feet. Cloud peak, one of the most beautiful mountains in the state, is 13,730 feet above sea level. Besides these mountains Wyoming has thirty-one other named peaks upward of 12,000 feet in height and some forty unnamed mountains which exceed that altitude.

An interesting story might be written of the thousands of lofty unnamed mountain peaks of the west which are nearly double the height of the very highest mountains in the entire Appalachian mountain system in the eastern portion of the country. Colorado alone has dozens of mountains without name which are more than double the height of our most lofty eastern mountain.

SUNDAY QUARREL ENDS IN MURDER ON J. H. ALLEN FARM

Sheriff South, Deputy and Coroner, of Clinton County, Summoned From This City Yesterday Afternoon to Locate John Williams, Wanted for Murder of Frank Stradley on "Doc" Allen Farm.

Sheriff Ben South, the deputy sheriff and the Coroner of Clinton county, who were in this city to attend the ball game Sunday afternoon, were hurriedly summoned to take up their official duties in Western Clinton where Frank Stradley, 30, was shot and almost instantly killed by John Williams, who resides on the 700 acre farm of J. H. Allen of this city.

The shooting occurred early in the afternoon, and was the result of a quarrel over some money which Stradley claimed was due him from Williams. It is claimed that Williams, who is 60 years of age, shot Stradley in the back of the head as Stradley was in the act of going into the house. His wife heard the shot and rushed to the door to find her husband's body.

Sheriff South and his deputy hurried from this city to the scene, but found that Williams had disappeared, and with a posse of citizens from the neighborhood in which the crime was committed, he started a search for the missing man, but up to latest reports had not located him.

The Allen farm is midway between Midland City and Blanchester, and Williams was one of several tenants who reside on the farm. He is formerly from Pike county and has a large family.

The dead man was also employed on the Allen farm, and leaves a widow and five small children. He was 30 years old.

It is claimed that immediately after the shooting Williams ran to his house, told his wife of the trouble, and left at once for parts unknown. The delay occasioned by the presence of the officers in this county allowed the man to escape.

WASHINGTON.

Corwin to Grandie to Arthur. Adams to Arthur. Noon to Grandie to Arthur. No runs.

Manager Noon has scheduled a game next Sunday with the fast Dayton, Ky., nine that played a thirteen inning game here last year.

All rainchecks issued Sunday will be good at any game this season.

DEATH CLAIMS

J. G. SMITH

After an illness of several months Mr. J. G. Smith answered the eternal summons Sunday afternoon at half past two o'clock, at his residence on N. Fayette street.

He was 59 years of age and until the last two weeks refused to give up and was actively engaged in business as traveling salesman with the Ash Noyse and Small Shoe Co., of Auburn Me., of which firm he was a member.

A popular business man and genial courteous gentleman, Mr. Smith's death will be learned with regret by many friends. He is survived by a widow and two children, Mrs. George Schneyer, of Dayton, and Frank.

The funeral services will not be held until Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock, owing to the fact that Mr. M. C. Small, of the Ash, Noyse and Small Co., cannot reach here until that time.

Rev. Henness will conduct the services at the residence and burial will be in the Washington cemetery.

LAWRENCE ROBINSON LAID TO REST TODAY

The final chapter in the life of Lawrence Robinson was closed Monday morning when his remains, which arrived in this city Saturday evening on the 6:14 train, were laid to rest in the family lot in the Washington cemetery.

Brief funeral services were held in the cemetery Chapel, with Rev. P. J. Henness in charge. The young widow was unable to attend the services, but had visited the mortuary Sunday.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT NEAR MT. STERLING

An ugly motorcycle accident occurred near Mt. Sterling, late Saturday afternoon, when two unknown men were badly injured when the motorcycle they were riding, went into the ditch.

The men were discovered by Doan Powless and Burnett Hyer, of this city, and they rendered assistance to the pair of unfortunate cyclists.

When found one of the men was still in the ditch in an unconscious condition, while the other was standing in the middle of the road signaling for help. The man in the ditch had his skull fractured, it is claimed, while the other had one wrist broken, his chin all but cut off and a ragged scalp wound. Both were covered with blood, and were taken to Mt. Sterling, where medical attention was rendered.

The man who was not unconscious stated that it was his machine, and that the man behind had dropped one foot down upon the road, causing the cycle to swerve into the ditch.

FRANKFORT ELEVATOR STRUCK AND BURNED

Sunday afternoon during the heavy electrical storm which passed over this and adjoining counties, lightning struck the grain elevator of Elias Hutton, at Frankfort, and the building together with 7,000 bushels of wheat was destroyed, entailing a loss of fully $15,000.

The loss was only partly covered by insurance.

DOG CREATES SOME EXCITEMENT

A dog said to be suffering from hydrophobia, but which probably had been poisoned, created quite a little excitement on North North street Sunday night, and was followed for some distance and killed by residents of the street.

For a short time much excitement was occasioned by the strange actions of the dog.

COUNTY SCHOOL BOARD HOLDS FIRST MEETING

A lengthy meeting of the County Board of Education was held at the court house Saturday night, most of the time being occupied with discussions, little business being transacted, and arrangements being made for a meeting at the court house at one o'clock next Saturday afternoon, when members of the various boards of Education in the county will be present, and the matter of districting the county will be taken up.

All members were present, with President Wilson Morris in the chair. The meeting opened at eight o'clock. County Superintendent Frank M. Allen was secretary of the board.

Following the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting, member W. E. Smith, of Milledgeville, presented a petition signed by F. E. Hidy, U. G. Rankin, Ed. Sheridan, C. C. Andrews, Phil. Uhrig and A. B. Johnson—all presidents of boards of education, asking for the resignation of President Morris. The petitioners stated that they had voted for Mr. Morris with the belief that he would support a certain candidate for County Superintendent, and had not done so.

He moved that the Board join the petitioners in the demand for the resignation of Mr. Morris. Member Minnick seconded the motion, and the matter was argued at considerable length, and resulted in the president ruling the motion out of order. The minutes, which were admitted to be a correct record of the previous proceedings, were eventually approved, Morris, Long and Wilson voting to approve, and Smith and Minnick against the approval.

The objections of Member Smith were made part of the record of the meeting. The question of what should be done toward districting the county was then taken up, and discussed, with the result that it was decided to hold a meeting Saturday afternoon and go into the details more thoroughly.

PRESENCE OF MIND SAVES AGED WOMAN

Mrs. Agnes Hartman, 82, was painfully burned at her home on Court street Saturday evening while attempting to brush off some gasoline which had escaped from a tank overhead, from the base of a gasoline stove. The paper ignited and instantly the arms of the aged woman were enveloped in flames.

Before the flames could burn deeply into the flesh she had smothered them in her skirts. Her injuries, while painful, are not serious.

FUNERAL SERVICES OF MRS JANE OGLE

Mrs. Mary Jane Ogle, second daughter of Aseneth and Samuel F. Yeoman, pioneer residents of this city, who died at the old homestead place on Washington Avenue Thursday morning, was laid to rest at sunset Saturday evening.

Simple and beautiful services, in accordance with her wishes, were conducted by Rev. A. W. West of the First Baptist church, in the same room in which Mary Jane Yeoman had been married to Theodore Ogle in 1857.

The funeral was private, with only close friends gathered around the quiet sleeper and by request only the flowers used were those which bespoke the affection of her nearest and dearest.

The pastor read the scriptures which Mrs. Ogle had chosen, part of the Fourteenth Chapter of John and the Twenty-third Psalm, and at the Washington Cemetery, where the burial was made in the family lot, read Tennyson's hymn, "Crossing the Bar."

The pall bearers were Mr. F. D. McKinniss, of Marion, Dr. R. M. Hughey, Messrs Frank L. Stutson, D. T. McLean, Roy Haglar and Sherman Bishop.

Four children of the seven which were born to Mr. and Mrs. Ogle, survive their mother, Comly, Joseph, Earle and Grace, and all were present for the sunset farewell.

Mrs. Harry Matthews and children of Columbus, are the guests of Mrs. Matthews' mother, Mrs. Belle Smith, enroute to Chicago, where they join Mr. Matthews to make their future home.

Mr. and Mrs. Orville Bush and Mr. Earl Palmer spent Sunday in Dayton with Miss Blanch Breech.

It is now a recognized fact that the best grades of shoe repairing can only be done through the means of machinery. The old time cobbler filled a bill and he was the pioneer in the shoe repairing business. The old time cobbler was all right in his day, but his day is past, and he is now in the way. Cobblers were never shoemakers, that is if we use the term shoemaker in these days. From a professional point of view cobblers are cobblers, and nothing else.

Duffee has the modern machinery and knows how to finish the shoes after the machines. Men's sewed soles and heels $1.00; ladies sewed soles and heels 75c; rubber heels 35c. ## Care of Pearls.

One of the representatives of a famous jewelry firm gives a word of advice upon the preservation and treatment of pearls. Upon no account, he said, should they be locked up in a safe or other dark place for lengthy periods, since such treatment soon causes them to lose their "life" and become dull. If their fair owners find that for some reason or other they cannot wear them outside their garments they should make a point of wearing them underneath the dress next to the skin. Constant contact with the human skin gives to the stones light, luster, gloss and sheen. The best possible way to keep the pearls in a perfect state of preservation, as well as to prolong their life, is to wear them always, both by night and by day.—London Tit-Bits.

The Cruel Lie.

When Distract was nearing his end a young disciple said to him: "Master, what is the unpardonable sin? Is it not a lie?" The astute and subtle statesman, in the shadow of the grave, where he saw with the clearer vision, looked at the young man with deep, unfathomable eyes and answered: "No, a lie is not the unpardonable sin. The unpardonable sin is the cruel lie."

On the borders of that shadowy land where great things grow small and little things loom large on the horizon he had come to know that the crime that is not forgiven is the brutal instinct that impels us to wound, to embitter, to mortify.

She Liked Whist.

The modern whist fiend seems colorless beside that enthusiastic exponent of the game, Sarah Battle, whom Charles Lamb describes in his "Essays

PRESS PAYS TRIBUTE TO LATE REV. ARCHIBALD ROSS

Funeral services of the late Rev. Archibald Ross, D. D., LL. D., father of Rev. Frederick E. Ross, of this city, were held from the Bushwick Avenue Congregational church, Brooklyn, N. Y., and interment was made in the Evergreens Cemetery, Brooklyn.

In the death of Rev. Ross Brooklyn lost one of her best known and most loved citizens, and a man whose name was by no means confined to Brooklyn, as indicated by the following brief history of his life, which is from the Newtown Register, of Thursday, July 23:

"The recent death of Rev. Archibald Ross, D. D., of Brooklyn, removes from the religious and literary life of the city a character of rare interest.

"He was best known to the residents of the old town of Newtown through the interesting and instructive articles which appeared from time to time in the Register, and by his self-sacrificing and noble religious work in the Middle Village.

"When he came to that community some 25 years ago as pastor of the Methodist church, he found that church society in a very run-down condition and almost dead, so much so that the entire abandonment of the church was being seriously considered.

"Mr. Ross went to work with such vigor that he soon inspired others, and with him as their leader the church officers rallied to the rescue and the church was soon restored to its oldtime vigor. He labored for several years in Middle Village, and it is largely owing to his untiring efforts that the church is now in its present flourishing condition.

"Dr. Ross was born in Charlotte-town, Prince Edwards Island, in 1835. Educated in private and public schools in Canada, he studied theology in Queens' University, Kingston, Canada, and subsequently entered the ministry of the Presbyterian Church. Coming with his family to New York in 1876, he supplied several well known pulpits and became active in platform work.

"Never robust in health, he was compelled to renounce the work of the ministry, devoting his time intermittently to newspaper and literary work. He will be recalled as a frequent contributor to the Standard Union, Evening Post, Newtown Register, and other papers. His literary attainments were large, his insight almost unerring, his range broad and his style at once racy and luminous. If at times abstruse and remote, it was because of his marked philosophical bias.

"However, he possessed the rare faculty of translating philosophy into terms of life, and this was one of the secrets of his power as a writer.

"He was of Highland Scotch descent, possessing all the fire and fervor of the Celt. Steeped in the spirit and letter of English poetry, he early acquired a style marked by purity and elevation of thought. His muse was refined and vigorous and his art never sank to the level of art for art's sake. To him poetry was the hand maid of religion, and what God had joined together he dare not put asunder.

"In 1904 he issued 'Duty and Others Poems,' a volume of surpassing poetic interest and power. On almost every page there are gems of truth fit to be inscribed among the classics of the English language. Some of the most noted poems in this volume are: 'Duty,' 'Hope,' 'Charity,' 'Cygnus,' 'The Soul's Up-look,' 'The Response,' 'William of Orange,' etc.

"A later volume was called 'Life Sketches,' a series of fascinating incidents, journeys afoot, anecdotes, etc. There is life and color on every page of the book and no one can read it without seeing the author possessed literary genius of a high order.

"Like most poetic temperaments Dr. Ross was wanting in business capacity. The commercial spirit was foreign to his nature, and his talents were never properly recognized or capitalized. It is freely conceded that only this lack of a business faculty prevented him from acquiring large means.

"His 'Philosophy of Deep Breathing' was a well-matured utterance on the health value of proper breathing and walking exercises. Twenty-five years later a gentleman of the medical profession traversed the same ground—not exactly a pioneer.

"He was widely known as a pedestrian. Walking to him was a genuine pleasure, for many years it being his rule to walk from five to ten miles each day. The late Mayor Gaynor is said to have taken up the practice of extensive walking largely through Dr. Ross' influence.

"As poet, preacher and pedestrian he was an original and virile man. Perhaps his supreme aim for many years was to make others happy. Thousands of humble homes were gladdened by his visits. The little children loved him because of his unfeigned interest in them, and a notable incident of his funeral was a beautiful floral offering from his countless little friends.

"He leaves behind him three children, Archibald Ross, Jr., Jesse E. Ross, and Rev. Frederick E. Ross, D. D., of the Ohio Methodist Episcopal Conference, a well known minister."

In Social Circles

The beautiful home of Mr. H. K. Stewart, "Spring Hill Farm" was the scene of a delightful surprise party upon the occasion of Mr. Stewart's birthday, Sunday evening.

The affair had been planned by Mrs. Stewart and sister, Miss Lora Martin, about twenty relatives and intimate friends invited and taking Mr. Stewart completely by surprise.

The evening was one of much pleasure, the large grounds and verandahs and the always cordial hospitality of the Stewart's so inviting that the guests lingered late in the evening and left wishing their host many happy returns of the day.

A delicious summer collation and a big bowl of punch proved refreshing.

Miss Margaret Fullerton of Columbus was an out of town guest.

Mrs. Will Morgan pleasantly entertained the girls of the Tau Mu Tau club in farewell to her guest, Miss Marie Mobley, of Hope Ark.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Thompson entertained with an elegant dinner on Sunday.

An orange and white color scheme was used in decoration.

Seated with the host and hostess were Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Baughn and son Roy, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hays and son Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Oth Dawson, Mr. S. D. Barr and Mr. Leonard Bass, of Austin.

Mr. and Mrs. Almer Hegler entertained with a very beautiful dinner at their home on the Chillicothe pike Sunday.

A flat design of American beauty roses and fern was singularly effective in table decorations. Seated with the host and hostess were Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Parrett, Mr. Roy Haglar and family, Mr. and Mrs. Val McCoy, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Howat and daughter Miss Jean, Miss Rose McLean, Miss Mary Robinson and guest Miss Katharine McKibben, of Cynthia, Ky., Misses Edith, Mable and Grace Pavey, of Columbus, Messrs Howard Haglar and Arthur Staubus, of Austin.

Miss Virginia Campbell entertained the girls of the algonquin club Saturday evening at a handsome six o'clock dinner.

THANKS FOR A FAVOR.

The Lady and the Baker and a Little Bit of a Surprise.

It was after dark, and the French baker was about to close his shop when the telephone bell rang.

"Mr. Owens?"

"Yes, ma'am."

"This is Mrs. Jimley of Hickorynut street."

"Yes, Mrs. Jimley."

"I am giving a supper tonight, and I discover that I need half a dozen more rolls. Could I trouble you to send them over?"

"I'm sorry, ma'am, but I haven't a roll left in the store nor even a loaf of bread. We are sold clear out tonight."

"This is very provoking," said Mrs. Jimley. "Are you sure you haven't anything that would do?"

"There isn't a thing in the place that I would care to sell you, ma'am. Hold on, though. There's a half dozen fresh rolls on my own supper table right now. I could let you have those if you think they would do. My kids can eat crackers instead. They'd rather, anyway."

"Those will do very nicely, Mr. Owens. Will you send them over soon, please?"

"Right away, ma'am. The boy has gone for the night, but I'll take them to you myself."

In a minute or two he stood on her front steps ringing the bell and feeling well pleased with himself that he could do some one a kindness.

Mrs. Jimley opened the door and took the packages from his hands. Then she said in icy tones:

"The next time you bring any goods here, Mr. Owens, I wish you would remember to ring the basement bell. I can't have tradesmen coming to the front door."—Newark News.

He Knew.

"If I were you," his wife said, "I'd go to that man and tell him exactly what I thought of him. He lied to you, and you ought to tell him that you know it. If I were you I'd let him know just how I despised him. I'd have the satisfaction of making him feel ashamed of himself."

"No, my dear," he replied, "you wouldn't do anything of the kind. If you were me you'd do just as I'm doing. This fellow weighs fifty pounds more than I do, and they tell me he's one of the best boxers in this town."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Wyoming Has Many High Mountains. Wyoming has nine mountains exceeding 13,000 feet in height and of these three approach the 14,000 foot mark, according to the United States geological survey. They are Gannett peak, 13,785 feet; Grand Teton, 13,747 feet, and Fremont peak, 13,730 feet. Cloud peak, one of the most beautiful mountains in the state, is 13,730 feet above sea level. Besides these mountains Wyoming has thirty-one other named peaks upward of 12,000 feet in height and some forty unnamed mountains which exceed that altitude.

An interesting story might be written of the thousands of lofty unnamed mountain peaks of the west which are nearly double the height of the very highest mountains in the entire Appalachian mountain system in the eastern portion of the country. Colorado alone has dozens of mountains without name which are more than double the height of our most lofty eastern mountain.

FOUR DROWNED NEAR CLEVELAND

Cleveland, July 27.—Four persons lost their lives in waters in the vicinity of Cleveland, two victims being canoeists. Ayrault E. Rhodes, thirty-one, an hotel employee, was seized with cramps while bathing at Edgewater Park beach and sank almost immediately. James B. Anderson lost his life in Rocky river when a canoe overturned. George Fodlaty of Warren was drowned during a canoe regatta at an amusement park. The fourth fatality was near Akron, when Albert Saunders of Akron went bathing in the Big Cuyahoga river. He was unable to swim.

CINCINNATI MURDER

Cincinnati, July 27.—Shortly after being introduced to Harry C. Roesser, Edward Krampa shot him through the head, killing him instantly. Krampa then surrendered to the police and gave as his reason for the shooting that Roesser had come to call on his (Krampa's) sister and that he had objected to their friendship.

FOREMAN KILLED

Caldwell, O., July 27.—Henry Ruch, forty, Pennsylvania section foreman, was run down and instantly killed by a Cleveland and Marietta passenger train. He was lying on the tracks and the engineer could not stop the train in time. Ruch was literally cut to pieces.

TROOPS FIRE UPON A MENACING MOB

Four Persons Killed and From Thirty to Sixty Wounded.

SERIOUS OUTBREAK IN DUBLIN

Conflict Followed Successful Gun Running Exploit on the Part of Nationalists, Who Secure Arms and Ammunition at a Point Near Dublin. Affair Believed the Precursor of Further Bloodshed.

Dublin, July 27.—There was a serious riot here during which four persons were killed and thirty to sixty seriously wounded by the bullets and bayonets of regular soldiers. The affair, which, it is feared, is the precursor of further serious troubles, may even possibly be the beginning of the dreaded internecine conflict.

The outbreak is the outcome of a Nationalist gunrunning exploit. About 1,000 Nationalist volunteers paraded the city and marched to Howth, about ten miles away, for the purpose of landing a thousand rifles. On their arrival at the pier signals were made to a white yacht which had been maneuvering in the bay. The yacht promptly started towards the shore and when she came to the pier she began discharging her cargo of rifles and ammunition. The Nationalists, armed, started to return to Dublin.

Meanwhile the authorities at Dublin had been warned of what was going on and a detachment of policemen and 160 men of the "King's Own" Scottish soldiers had been sent to intercept the volunteers. When the latter arrived at Nalahide road, in Clontarf, they found their way blocked by the police in front and the soldiers with fixed bayonets behind. The policemen were ordered to disarm the volunteers, who resisted, and a sharp fight ensued. Several persons were hurt by the clubs of the police and by rifle bullets. The main body of the volunteers fled and reached the city, by cutting across fields, with their rifles.

Meanwhile the fighting had become known in the city, which was ablaze with excitement, and big mobs collected in the streets through which the soldiers were expected to return. As soon as they appeared there were shouts of rage and these were followed by volleys of stones. The soldiers marched on until they reached the Bachelors' walk quay bridge, where the shooting began. It is said that some of the mob fired first with revolvers.

The mob then pressed forward and threatened to sweep the soldiers with the revolvers. The troops were ordered to fire a volley over the heads of the mob, which was done. The mob ignored this, and the soldiers then fired a volley of ball cartridges into the crowd. A number of people dropped and there were shrieks of rage and pain. After this the soldiers proceeded to their barracks.

Subsequent inquiries showed that three men and a woman had been shot dead and that from thirty to sixty persons, mostly men, had been wounded. It is reported that some of the wounded, including a child of ten years of age, are dying.

After the volleying by the troops the mob beat and kicked every soldier they saw concerned in the fight.

SCOUNDREL OF WORST BRAND

Passaic, N. J., July 27.—Archie Senville, sixteen, who was released from Jamestown reformatory only two weeks ago, confessed before Justice of the Peace Rubin that he had chloroformed and criminally assaulted Ruth Friend, eight, the daughter of a neighbor. He is held without bail in the county jail to await the action of the grand jury. The neighborhood is much excited.

Senville said that he bought the chloroform at a drug store, telling the proprietor he intended to chloroform a cat. He saw Ruth playing near her home and told her he would take her to a moving picture show. Then he enticed her to the cellar of the house and clapped a handkerchief saturated with the chloroform over her mouth. Ruth's brother found her in the cellar some time later.

DAUGHERTY TO GIVE UP POST

Columbus, July 27.—Harry M. Daugherty announces he will retire as chairman of the Republican state executive committee in order to devote his time to business. He declared he would decline a re-election to the chairmanship.

JOINS BROTHER

Philadelphia, July 27.—Alexander Miller, brother of Thomas Miller, who shot his wife and committed suicide last week, also committed suicide, worrying over his brother's deed.

RETURNS TO WORK

Columbus, July 27.—Nearly 16,000 miners have resumed work in Ohio as a result of local settlements made in the Cambridge and Jackson fields. Subdistrict meetings will be held this week at Pomeroy, Massillon and Zanesville, where settlements will be made in those fields.

OLD FORT MARION.

America's Only Medieval Castle a Landmark in St. Augustine.

For more than 200 years St. Augustine was the Spanish capital of Florida, and the Florida of those days extended from the Chesapeake bay to the Pacific ocean. It was an impregnable stronghold all of those years.

Old Fort Marion, begun in 1592 and finished in 1756, is the only medieval castle in America. It cost an enormous sum of money. Repeated heavy drafts of the builders caused the king of Spain to inquire if they were building Fort Marion of gold dollars. The castle stands today in perfect condition, guarded by the United States government. The keeper conducts visitors through the castle, down into the dungeons and shows you rings in the walls where victims of Spanish oppression were chained to die. Report, fairly well authenticated, has it that when the castle fell into the hands of the British two skeletons were found in one of these dungeons chained to the wall. One was of a man, the other a woman. There is something uncanny about these dungeons that cannot be described by word of mouth.

While there has been great improvement in old St. Augustine, the ancient landmarks have been preserved. The old city gate is intact; the Spanish monuments hundreds of years old attract the lover of antiquities. Narrow streets characterized all Spanish towns of medieval times. There are streets in St. Augustine not more than ten or a dozen feet wide, each side lined with the same type of buildings that were the custom three or four centuries ago.

TOD DEFIES AUD. SAYRE

Youngstown, O., July 27.—David Tod, candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, gave out the following reply to the threat of Fred M. Sayre of Columbus that he would start action against Tod. Mr. Tod says to Sayre:

"You now say in an open letter to me that unless I publicly apologize for repeating what you said with reference to a contribution of $5,000 to your organization you will institute some sort of court proceedings. The section of law you quote plainly applies to falsehoods, not to what I have publicly said concerning you. My reply to your open letter is: You may regard this as a reiteration and confirmation of my public statement relating to you and the $5,000 incident."

FASHION AND MISERY.

A Pitiful Tragedy That Revealed an Incongruous Combination.

One of the standing subjects of humorous remarks among New York theatergoers is the weekly article on men's fashions, published over the nom de plume of Beau Brummel, in the programs of the theaters of the better class.

Some people think Beau Brummel is a woman, while others believe him to be merely a haberdasher with a drug habit. However that may be, it is a reasonable supposition that no one wears any of the clothes that Beau Brummel writes about. It couldn't be done. If any man ever arrayed himself in one week's output of the Beau Brummel fashions and started down Broadway he'd land in jail or the psychopathic ward at Bellevue.

The case of Beau Brummel is merely funny. But here is a grim and pitiful little tragedy which is in a way related to it. In a small tenement, at the eastern and poverty stricken end of Fifty-sixth street, the police found John Conwell and his old mother, dead from gas. The man was past middle age and unmarried. They lived alone, and he idolized the woman—a poor, old drunkard. The neighbors said he used to cry hysterically when she would stagger home, stupefied with drink. At last he turned on the gas while she slept and died with her.

He wore cotton overalls at the time of his death, and the few articles of his wearing apparel found in the apartment were worn and ragged. Yet the letters and papers which the police took possession of proved that he earned a livelihood for himself and his mother by writing articles on the latest fashions in men's dress.—New York Letter in Cincinnati Times-Star.

"While you were standing in the doorway telling the sweet young thing goodnight did it ever dawn upon you?" "Oh, no! I never stayed that late."—Judge.

Clearing Themselves. Among the many means adopted of expressing grief upon the death of a relative perhaps as interesting as any is that met with in the neighborhood of the Tully river, in Queensland. Here two, three or four of deceased friends or relatives will squelch close together, with hands on each other's shoulders, bewailing for hours a time the loss of the dear departed. It is not the virtues of the latter that are in any way extolled, however. What these mourners are really taking care to do is to show that they and deceased were always good friends. Their object in all this is to prove to the outside public that they have nothing to do with the encompassing of the death.—Wide World Magazine.

Life. In certain of its essential respects, madhouse; in others, a pageant; in still others, a commonplace succession of humdrum incidents. At times you are quite sure it is all a gray monotony again it begins to arise and spread self like an Arabian night. And unexpected breaks loose—a series of strange encounters, flashes of color, bright enger personalities flitting and strutting in excess of vitality.—Harper's Weekly.

THIRST FOR BLOOD LURKS WITH CHIEF

Amnesty Held An Act of Generosity On Part of Conqueror.

CARRANZA DEFINES ATTITUDE

Present Peace Efforts May Be Blocked by the Constitutionalist Chief, Who Is Not Disposed to Make a Formal Agreement Granting Amnesty In Advance of His Actual Assumption of Power in Mexico City.

Washington, July 27.—Advices to the effect that General Carranza is not disposed to make a formal agreement granting amnesty in advance of his actual assumption of power in Mexico City reached Washington from the headquarters of the Constitutionalist chief.

This is not in line with what the American government has previously understood to be Carranza's position, and if insisted upon may disrupt the proposed peace conferences in Mexico at their very beginning. Provisional President Carranza has been urged by all elements, both among the military and the civil classes generally, to obtain an amnesty before yielding the reins of government. Many an offer has been made to him for support in case he can not obtain proper guarantees from the Constitutionalist for the lives and property of those who supported the Huerta government.

The United States has taken a definite position urging that an amnesty and guarantees be given. Informal assurances came recently from Carranza that, with the exception of those who were directly responsible for the murder of Madero and Suarez, he would not prosecute the supporters of the Huerta government. Within the last two days, however, John R. Silliman, personal representative of President Wilson with Carranza, has reported his doubts on the subject. Carranza has told Silliman that amnesty was something for the conqueror to give the conquered as an act of generosity and not as a condition of surrender. The Constitutionalist chief insists that the surrender of the Carranza government must be unconditional.

There still is hope among administration officials that a middle ground will be reached in the forthcoming peace conferences by which the question will be peacefully adjusted, though in many quarters already misgivings are current as to Carranza's intentions.

THE MINISTER'S ANSWER.

It Was More Than He Really Expected.

By SYLVIA MEREDITH.

The little minister—little in stature, little in power, little in salary—sat before a table in his study diligently and laboriously searching amid the leaves of various volumes of reference and occasionally scribbling a few sentences on paper which later on should serve as notes for his sermon on the following Sunday.

The Rev. James Philander Dubois smiled fondly and proudly and gratefully while he thought. He was an unmarried churchman who felt it incumbent upon himself to become one of the two principal performers in a ceremony in which already he had become quite proficient as an agent of fate where others were concerned.

So he leaned back and gazed at the ceiling and thought of a beautiful, brave young creature. He lingered mentally on her radiant face, her graceful form, and heard in his brain the sweet thrill of her voice.

He had never thought thus of any woman before. Until he first saw Marguerite Van Diemen a year ago he looked on all women with an academic eye as parishioners and studied them only to decide what branch of church work, if any, they were best fitted for.

But the year that followed his first sight of the violet eyes of Miss Marguerite and the brown hair that shone like sunny light drowned in amber pools in a forest brook had been a year of awakening for him.

It was not a quite complete awakening, however. He was very thoroughly awake—wide, staring, stark awake—to the knowledge that he was so deeply in love with her that to lose her would mean a dreary, sorrowful life for him, but he was not awake enough to suppose that he had any qualities or attributes to please so wonderful and clever and bright a creature. He expected her answer to be "No," but he was pining just the same to ask the question.

So, like the courageous and determined little minister that he was, he had written to her asking for the favor of an interview on a matter very important to him. And she had replied, appointing that very evening and adding, "You should know that I have declined an invitation to the County club dance in order to give you this evening, though the dance is the last one of the season, and I was really anxious to go."

The clock struck the hour, and the minister became aware with a sharp start that it was high time to keep his appointment. He arose and put on his overcoat.

At that moment the doorbell rang. Passing through an adjoining room, he opened the door and saw before him a young woman, poorly dressed in a faded gown of blue, her head topped off with a hat of uncertain texture, under which her hair hung forth in all directions. Her face was terribly wasted and sorrowful.

The reverend gentleman shrank back. He wished that he could escape what he foresaw would be a long delay, but sense of duty conquered the human instinct at once.

The young woman spoke as soon as he opened the door. "Won't you give me something to eat?" she begged. "I haven't had anything since morning."

"Poor soul!" muttered the little minister. "The housekeeper is out for the afternoon, but I shall do the best I can for you. Will you come to the kitchen while I investigate the pantry?"

As the unkempt young woman followed him into the kitchen the minister felt such deep, angry annoyance as only a man can feel when the woman he loves is waiting for him while circumstances keep him away. But the moment he realized that he, a minister, pledged to help the afflicted and the sinning, had what was almost an emotion of hatred toward this poor creature he crushed down what were wicked and shameful thoughts to him.

"Have you been a victim of circumstances or what is termed hard luck?" was one of the first things the minister asked after he had dished up cold victuals and a quantity of vegetables.

"Oh, it's a long story," insinuatingly replied the woman, while she devoured the stuff set before her.

He heard the maid open the door. He heard a soft voice ask for him. Before he could rise a gown rustled, and Marguerite Van Diemen came toward the open library door.

"Whatever may have been the past," said the little minister, "don't forget that forgiveness is yours for the asking."

He spoke in his most persuasive accents to the poor creature. Finally she broke down and told all her story—an old, old story, not at all romantic, not even interesting to any except the poor creature herself. The minister listened patiently to her long, labored, tedious recital, and if sometimes he felt as if he would go wild with impatience when he thought of Marguerite he promptly forced himself in punishment to concentrate his mind and soul even more than before on the object before him that demanded so much of his pity and help.

Here was a soul for him to succor and save, and what was his own heart's ease to that?

It was late that evening before the little minister returned home after having found a home for his distressed protégée. He should have felt a thrill of gratitude for duty done and a sense of humble satisfaction for his success in bringing back the straying one to the right road.

He blamed himself for not feeling it. But the more he tried to feel content because he had done his duty the more his soul sank in him and the heavier did his heart seem.

The Rev. Mr. Dubois, though a most devoted minister, was none the less an intensely human man, and all the satisfaction in doing a duty could not lift him from the despondency that he was in, for he felt sure that he had lost any chance, if he possessed one, with Marguerite Van Diemen.

His belief was strengthened to conviction next day when he called at her house, wondering what he could say to gain her pardon. It was characteristic of him that it never entered his head to explain to her what had kept him away. That would have seemed like cant and self praise to the little minister.

The only excuse he could offer was "parochial business." And he realized sharply that would seem a paltry excuse, though he didn't consider anything in the line of his duty as paltry.

So he sent up his card in low spirits, and he was not surprised, though he was grieved, when the maid returned and said that her mistress begged to be excused and added a request that he write to her, saying what she could do for him.

Another man might have felt offended and haughty. The little minister was too just for that. He went home quietly and wrote a very simple little letter telling Miss Marguerite Van Diemen all that was in his heart. He begged her forgiveness for not keeping the appointment and explained it by saying: "A little matter of church business came up to keep me. I could not evade it, though I assure you that it was a great sorrow to me to be kept away."

Twenty minutes after he had dispatched the note his doorbell rang again. This time the little minister did feel that there were dramas in little things. He laid down his pen and thought.

He heard the maid open the door. He heard a soft voice ask for him. Before he could rise a gown rustled, and Marguerite Van Diemen came toward the open library door.

your note myself," she said. She held up her hand. "Before I tell you what it is," she continued very hurriedly, with her breath coming short and fast and her eyes shining, "let me tell you something else. Do you know what I have always abhorred the most? The preaching that does not practice! And next to that I object to the practicing that preaches too much of what it does!"

The little minister looked at her with questioning bewilderment in his dark eyes.

Marguerite Van Diemen made a few steps forward and toward him.

"I saw you last evening on the street with a young woman," she went on. "I was a little angry that you should have thought of anything except our appointment. This morning I went to carry some medicine to old Mrs. Anston and found that you had taken the young woman there to nurse her. She told me what you had said to her and what you had done for her."

"Will you forgive me for seeming to neglect you?" faltered the little minister.

"Wait," said Miss Van Diemen. "I still wanted to test you. I wanted to see what you would do. So I waited till you wrote. If you had tried to explain more than you did, why, then perhaps I would not have brought you my answer."

And as she came toward the minister with her hands held out even the modest Rev. Mr. Philander did not need anything more to tell him what the answer was.

DUBLIN IS AROUSED BARRACKS ATTACKED

By Associated Press.
Dublin, Ireland, July 25.—The city of Dublin and the greater part of Catholic Ireland was today in a great state of excitement over yesterday's conflict between the regular troops of the British army and the Irish Nationalists which resulted in the killing of four persons and the wounding of many others, forty of whom were still in hospitals today in a serious condition. Day had dawned before the police succeeded in dispersing the crowd marching through the streets singing patriotic songs and looking for the soldiers on whom to inflict vengeance. The crowd, finding that the soldiers had been ordered to remain in the barracks, attacked the royal barracks. Finally the mob battered down the gate of the barracks and fired a couple of shots. Then bugles were sounded, the police came on the scene and the crowd was dispersed. The Nationalist leaders took the most serious view of the affair and will demand reparation from the government. The lord mayor of Dublin today demanded in the interest of peace of the city that battalion of the Scottish borders be removed. Movements in the barracks indicated that preparations were being made to send the regiment elsewhere. The gates of the barracks were guarded by a strong force of police.

Over 3,000 Candy Makers

Are turning out Ohio candy, in one hundred and fourteen candy factories of the state. And candy making is by no means a leading industry of Ohio. Do you know what the biggest factories of the state ARE making, and how many men it takes to keep them going? How many proprietors, how many clerks, and how many wage earners? It is interesting to read about, and it might be pretty useful, too. You must do business, directly or indirectly, with some of those factories, and their industry concerns you.

Our OHIO ALMANAC, just issued for 1914, tells you all about the manufacturing business of Ohio, the business of farming, the schools, the religious organizations, the population, the platforms of the various political parties, the officials of the state and the counties, and about 100,000 other interesting facts about your state. Useful bits of information they are, too, that would cost you hundreds of dollars in time and cash to find out for yourself if we had not gathered it all together for you.

And we sell it to you for 25c at our office, or 30c by mail, postpaid.

AUSTRIA EXPLAINS POSITION

By Associated Press.
Vienna, July 27.—A communication issued by the Austro-Hungarian foreign office today set forth the Austrian view of the Serbian reply to Austria's note demanding the cessation of the Pan-Serbian agitation and the punishment of those concerned in the assassination of Archduke Francis Ferdinand and his consort. The communication also gives the reasons for Austria's dissatisfaction with Serbia's reply. It follows in part: "The object of the Serbian note is to create the false impression that the Serbian government is prepared in great measure to comply with our demand. As a matter of fact, however, Serbia's note is filled with the spirit of dishonesty which clearly lets it be seen that the Serbian government is not seriously determined to put an end to the culpable tolerance it hitherto has extended to intrigues against the Austro-Hungarian monarch. In particular our demand for the participation of the Austro-Hungarian authorities in investigations to detect accomplices in the conspiracy on Serbian territory has been rejected while our request that measures be taken against that section of the Serbian press hostile to Austria-Hungary has been declined, and our wish that the Serbian government take the necessary measures to prevent the dissolved Austro-phobe associations continuing their activity under another name and another form has not even been considered."

LAI TO REST SATURDAY AFTERNOON

The funeral services of Mr. M. P. Flee, held Saturday afternoon at the residence, were very largely attended, Rev. A. W. West, officiated, assisted by Rev. Bowman Hostetter.
There were many beautiful flowers, among them special designs from the J. W. Willis Lumber Co. the Red Men, the Ladies Aid Society and Loyal Men's Bible Class of the Christain Church, Flowers' Bakery and the Cherry Hotel Barber Shop.
There was no music the pastor reading the hymns, "Will Jesus Care" and "Sometime We'll Understand," and speaking with deep appreciation of the deceased.
The interment was made in the Washington Cemetery, with Mr. J. M. Caldwell, of Chillicothe, Mesers Willard Willis, Phil Davis, Robert Sims, Chas. Thompson, and Glenn M. Pine acting as pallbearers.

PLAYING GOLF.

The Game Demands Concentration, Yet Invites Sociability.
"One thing at a time, and that done well," is a very good rule in golf, as in many other lines of either work or play. I speak of this because golf is a game in which the relationship between players is a bit different from what it is in any other game that comes to my mind. It is a game which to reap the best results demands great concentration and yet a game which at times is played wonderfully well by those who seem to be paying scant attention to the task in hand.
The game one moment brings men together and next sends them apart, according to the direction in which they happen to hit the ball. Two men can start from the same tee, be two hundred or more yards apart after their drives and both be on the same green after playing their second shots.
It is a game which invites sociability and yet does not either demand or require it. One man can go out and play all by himself and thoroughly enjoy his game, or two men can go out, play a round together, neither speak a word between the first tee and the last green, yet both go into the clubhouse and declare they had seldom or never spent a more enjoyable time.—Francis Quimet in St. Nicholas.

ATLANTIC OCEAN RECORDS.

Vessels That Won Fame by Reducing the Time of the Trips.
In the early days of Atlantic steam navigation anywhere from ten days to a fortnight was used up between New York and England, and on the eastward voyage it was by no means unusual for some of the sailing packet of Grinnell and Minturn, red, white and blue swallowtail burgee, and of Tommy Tapeport, black ball on burgee and foretop sail, to beat the lumbering sidewheelers.
The first steamer to cut under the ten day voyage was the Persia in 1856 with 9 days, 1 hour and 45 minutes. This remained a record for ten years until the Scotia in 1866, 8 days, 2 hours and 48 minutes, lapped off a whole day. Three years later the City of Brussels in 1869 established the seven day class, with 7 days, 22 hours and 3 minutes.
It was not until 1882 that the six day boat claimed the record, the Alaska, with 6 days, 18 hours and 37 minutes. The five day class was opened in 1883 by the City of Paris, with 5 days 11 hours 18 minutes. The first of the four day class was the Lusitania in 1908, with 4 days 15 hours. The record is now held by the Mauretania, with a passage in 1910 of 4 days, 11 hours and 21 minutes.—New York Sun.

PROMINENT WOMEN KILLED IN SHOCKING AUTO WRECK

Mrs. Chas. Gray, of Jeffersonville, and Miss Sadie Williams, of South Charleston, Instantly Killed at Late Hour Saturday Night When Traction Car Hits Automobile.

TWO OTHERS SERIOUSLY INJURED IN TRAGEDY NEAR SPRINGFIELD

Sam Harris, Colored Chauffeur, Under Arrest, and May Face Charge of Manslaughter—Claim Made That Man Had Been Drinking Previous to Fatal Accident—Relatives of Victims Reside Here.

Miss Georgiana Blessing, of Jeffersonville in Hospital, Funeral of Mrs. Gray Will Be Held Tomorrow Afternoon. Authorities Will Sift Accident to Bottom and Fix Responsibility for Same.

Late Saturday night the news of another shocking automobile accident in which two persons were instantly killed and others seriously injured, reached relatives of the victims in this city.

The tragedy occurred a few miles south of Springfield when the lives of Mrs. Alta B. Gray, aged 57, of Jeffersonville, and Miss Sadie Williams, aged 60, South Charleston, were snuffed out almost instantly and Miss Georgia Blessing, 50, also of Jeffersonville, and Sam Harris colored chauffeur, were badly injured when the automobile in which they were riding was struck by a traction car on the Springfield and Washington electric road.

Death overtook the two women about ten o'clock Saturday night, while they were on their way home from Springfield, and as a result of the terrible tragedy, Harris, the chauffeur, is under arrest, the claim being made that he was intoxicated at the time and responsible in a large measure for the accident.

Both women were crushed, cut and bruised in a horrible manner, Mrs. Gray having her skull crushed, both arms broken and body badly mutilated.

Miss Sadie Williams, who had been visiting Mrs. M. E. Corbett of Jeffersonville, and was the guest of Mrs. Gray on the trip to Springfield, had her neck broken, both arms broken and shoulders cut and bruised. She was in the tonneau with Mrs. Gray when the traction car crashed into the automobile.

Miss Georgia Blessing, who is a sister to Mr. Abe Blessing of Jeffersonville, was in the front seat and escaped the full force of the impact. She was taken to the Springfield hospital, suffering from an extensive scalp wound, many smaller cuts and bruises, and a sprained wrist.

Sam Harris, the colored chauffeur, escaped with a few bruises and cuts. He had been in the employ of Mrs. Gray for four years. A bottle of whiskey, 15 cents and cap were picked up near the wrecked auto.

The accident took place at a crossing about midway between South Charleston and Springfield, and at the point where the traction crosses the pike the car is visible for nearly three-quarters of a mile in either direction. The auto was struck by the traction car while the car was going at terrific speed, and before the motorman could materially reduce the speed of the heavy interurban car. No blame is placed upon the car crew.

The two victims of the wreck have brought to this city on the traction car, while the ambulance, patrol wagon and motorcycle officers hurried in that direction to learn the details of the horrible accident.

The traction car was stopped at Johnson avenue and Limestone street and Miss Blessing was taken to the city hospital.

The dead were taken to Jackson's morgue, while Harris was taken to police headquarters in the patrol wagon. A large crowd collected at the traction office, thinking the dead would be brought there, but were disappointed.

Little of the details of the accident could be remembered by Harris when taken to police headquarters. He admitted to the police he had been drinking but said he was not drunk.

Motorman Baker said: "As we were coming near Neva's crossing I saw the headlight of a machine only a short distance away. As the track crosses at an angle the driver of the auto could easily see the headlight of the car as he was right in front of it."

"I noticed the car had stopped and thought they were waiting for us to go by. A second later and I saw the auto start out and attempt to cross the tracks in front of the car."

"Instantly I shut off the power and applied the brakes. The tracks were wet and slippery and there was no chance to stop the car. We struck the rear of the machine while going at a fast rate of speed. The pilot of my car was torn off and the rear of the auto was wrecked."

"Going back we helped pick up the members of the party and placed them in the car proceeding to Springfield. Harris ran around hunting for the members of his party. He was too excited to talk and did not know what he was doing."

Monday's Springfield Sun says:

"Sam Harris, colored, chauffeur of the car still remains a prisoner in the county jail, where he is being held for investigation. Detectives Bargdill and Kerstetter spent some time yesterday trying to get a connected story of the accident but he could not remember anything about it. Later it was said he began to realize what he had done and was worrying over his situation."

"Coroner Howard Austin called at Jackson's morgue and viewed the bodies yesterday morning and later went to the scene of the wreck in his machine. It is his intention to probe the wreck to the bottom and find out who was responsible for the accident."

Within a few days an inquest will be held but the time has not been set yet by Coroner Austin.

"The Maxwell car in which the party had started for home early Saturday night was towed to this city yesterday morning and taken to the Valentine garage on North Fountain avenue. The machine is almost a total wreck, showing that it must have been struck while the traction car was going at a terrific speed."

Among those at the county jail to see Harris during the day were Dr. C. W. Russell and Attorney Will C. W. Keifer, the latter representing the traction company. It was said that Harris admitted he was drinking and did not know where he was when brought back to Springfield. Harris is married and the father of six children. He has been a resident of Jeffersonville for several years.

"It was said that under the new law he might be held for manslaughter in connection with the death of the women. A prominent attorney said last evening that the law was strict regarding a chauffeur drinking while engaged in driving a car."

PREPARE FOR WAR HOPING FOR PEACE

Practically All Nations of Europe Are Feverishly Arranging for Defense in Case of Outbreak, But the Diplomats and Cool-headed Men Are Busy With the "Dove."

RUSSIA CONSIDERS WAR INEVITABLE BETWEEN HERSELF AND THE AUSTRIANS

Greece Stands Ready to Aid the Servians in Case of Hostilities and Will Send One Hundred Thousand Troops Into the Field Against Austria—President Wilson Watching the Developments But Has Not Considered Offering to Move for Peace.

By Associated Press.

London, July 27.—Glimmers of hope flickered in the darkened sky of European politics today and the wish was general that the effort of the great European powers to prevent a clash of arms, which might involve many nations, might be successful. While all the powers were preparing for possible eventualities, their statesmen, with Sir Edward Gray, the British foreign secretary, were endeavoring to bring together the governments at issue with a view to mediation.

At the Servian legation in London the view was held that some improvement had taken place in the situation and this was attributed to influence exercised by Russia. The fact that Austrian ambassadors abroad were willing to discuss the controversial points with foreign governments, and especially with Russia, led to the belief that an outlet for the deadlock would be found.

The stock markets of London and the European capitals still displayed a panicky feeling although it was not as on Saturday. The Italian and German ambassadors here saw Sir Edward Gray this morning but with what results it could not be ascertained. A most serious view of the Austro-Servian situation is taken here. Many of England's diplomatic representatives were on their summer vacations but hurried back at once to their posts.

RUSSIA SURE THERE WILL BE WAR

By Associated Press.

Washington, July 27.—The gravity of the European situation was reflected in an official dispatch from St. Petersburg today saying the Russian minister of war had said he considered war between Russia and Austria almost inevitable. The order for the complete mobilization of the Russian army was confirmed.

President Wilson said today, in answer to inquiries whether the United States would try to bring about peace in Europe, that he had not considered the subject and that the traditional policy of the United States was not to mix in European affairs. He intimated that in the present crisis the United States could do nothing.

GREECE WILL SEND 100,000 MEN

London, July 25.—The Greek minister at Constantinople today declared Greece would be compelled to dispatch 100,000 troops to assist Servia in case of war with Austria-Hungary. Emperor William of Germany returned to Potsdam today from his cruise in northern waters and it is hoped throughout Europe he will throw his influence toward a peaceful settlement of the dispute.

It was said today Austria-Hungary will not move her forces against the Servian capital until tomorrow. All nations of Europe are preparing for war as none wish to be caught napping in case war should start. The North Sea would be England's danger point in the event of a European outbreak. A bitter feeling was noticeable in St. Petersburg today as a result of yesterday's diplomatic conversations.

6,000 TO GO FROM CLEVELAND

Cleveland, July 25.—Six thousand trained Hungarian soldiers, members of the first reserve of the Austro-Hungarian army will go from Cleveland to fight against Servia on the first call to arms.

Peace Preferred By German Government

Will Aid Austria Only In Event of Third Power Intervening.

WOULD LOCALIZE CONFLICT

Count Von Moltke Ready to Touch Button That Will Bring 4,000,000 German Soldiers In the Field—Ser via Unable to Comply With Aus tria's Demands—Hopes Expressed There Will Be No General War.

Vienna, July 27.—The first encounter between Austria and Serbia is reported to have occurred near Semendria, on the Danube, twenty-four miles southeast of Belgrade. Some vessels conveying Austrian infantry were said to have been fired on from the Ser bian side of the Danube, and to have returned the fire.

Berlin, July 27.—The German govern ment issued a note denying the reports printed in Paris and St. Peters burg papers which gave an incorrect statement as to Germany's position. The note reiterated the previous official statement that Germany consid ers the question wholly a matter be tween Austria and Serbia, and be lieves, therefore, that the conflict should remain localized. It added that Germany's entire efforts were in that direction for the purpose of main taining the peace of Europe. The note is a reiteration of the general understanding that Germany will only go to the assistance of Austria if a third power, meaning Russia, inter feres.

In governmental and diplomatic circles hope is still expressed that there will be no general war. Some believe that Russia will think twice before plunging Europe into a world war. Others believe the kaiser will find a way, either by a direct appeal to the czar not to mix in, or by calling Aus tria off.

There is a rigid censorship on all telegrams to and from Austria and there are no telephone connections with Vienna. A few telegrams were received here after many hours' delay. A late dispatch from the Austrian cap ital announced that General Putnik, the chief of staff of the Serbian army, had been arrested on a train at Buda pest while en route to Belgrade with his daughter. They were subsequently released.

The Serbian legation here received a telegram from Premier Pashitch de claring that Serbia had gone to the utmost limits possible to comply with Austria's demands. The dispatch an nounced the rupture of diplomatic re lations between the two countries and that the skupschina (parliament) had been called to meet in extraordi nary session.

In contrast with the excitement of the populace is the cool, calm demean or of the military authorities and their unobtrusiveness. They also say that no preparations are necessary because everything is ready. Count Von Molt ke, chief of the grand general staff, who may touch a famous button that will bring 4,000,000 German soldiers into the field, abruptly ended his cure at Carlsbad and returned to Berlin.

There are few dispatches from the Russian frontier. General Rejen kamp of Japanese war fame, who is now commanding the Villa district, is reported to have been placed in com mand of the army which will operate against Germany.

FAKE MARRIAGE

Cleveland, July 27.—Claiming that she was virtually held a prisoner for three years following a fake marriage ceremony, Apollonia Schimel, twenty, caused the arrest of Joseph Malin, twenty-eight. Malin, she said, abused her and made her supply him with money while he was idle. The woman recently learned that the marriage was illegal, she said.

WASHINGTON IS INTERESTED IN THE WAR FLASH

Washington, July 27.—The develop ments in the Austro-Serbian situation are being watched by official Wash ington with the keenest interest. No event since the warlike period of the Mexican situation has so aroused the capital, and further developments are anxiously awaited. The importance of the situation and its vast possibilities are not underestimated in Washing ton, though this capital has no stake in the game. It is believed that war between Austria and Serbia will have a profound effect on the political situation in west Europe. It is also thought that any upheaval in Europe would be reflected quickly in financial and economic circles in the United States.

PREVENTS RUPTURE

London, July 27.—War has not been declared by either Austria or Serbia. This is said to be due to the influence of the kaiser, who is reported to have made the first move toward prevent ing a general conflagration in Europe.

WILL CLOSE BOURSE

Vienna, July 27.—The governors of the bourse have asked the minister of finance to close the stock exchange for three days. It is feared in Berlin that this will intensify the conditions on the bourse there.

FRANCE IS READY

Paris, July 27.—All the heads of the French national defense organizations have received instructions, which are due to the crisis. The prefects have been warned to remain at their posts or to return if they are on vacations.

SERBIAN ARMY IS MOBILIZED

London, July 27.—The Serbian min ister here received a dispatch from Kraguyevatz stating that Crown Prince Alexander, acting as regent, had ordered a general mobilization of the Serbian army.

A CURIOUS WARNING.

It Was a Clever Ruse and Thoroughly Scared the Burglars.

For a time during the eighteenth cen tury in England there was a lull in the robbery industry owing to an odd in cident. Shortly after the execution of an English burglar named Elliston a curious communication purporting to have been written by him was put into circulation.

"Now, as I am a dying man," it ran, "I have done something which may be of good use to the public. I have left with an honest man—the only honest man I was ever acquainted with—the names of all my wicked brethren, the places of their abode, with a short account of the chief crimes they have committed, in many of which I have been the accomplice and heard the rest from their own mouths. I have like wise set down the names of those we frequent and all of those who receive and buy our stolen goods. I have solemnly charged this honest man and have received his promise upon oath that whenever he hears of any rogue to be tried for robbery or housebreaking he will look into his list and if he finds there the name of the thief concerned to send the whole paper to the govern ment. Of this I here give my com panions fair and public warning and hope they will take it."

It is said the hint was so effectual that for a long time pickpockets and burglars in that part of England went into panie stricken retirement. And, this being so, it is just as well they did not know that the letter was a clever forgery, the work of that prince of wits and humorists, Dean Swift.

HOAXED THE STATESMEN.

And at the Same Time Paul Biraute Proved His Proposition.

Paul Biraute, a writer on the Paris Eclair, contended that too many statues were being erected all over France to obscure heroes, too many official speeches made to celebrate intellectual nonentities, and Radical politicians generally are the blindest leaders of the blind.

To prove his theory that this was due to the fact that the living were deluged by public posing, he invented a celeb rity to glorify and called him Hege sippe Simon. No such man ever exist ed, but he described him in his letter as a most wonderful precursor of modern light and progress. To give his letter a certain importance he headed it with a motto to the following effect, "Darkness fades when the sun rises," representing it as the most remarkable dictum of the remarkable Hege sippe Simon.

Under this glorious motto he placed the title of his bogus committee, which he dubbed "public committee for the celebration of the centenary of Hege sippe Simon." He selected the names of 100 Radical deputies in alphabetical order and sent them each a letter, in which he said: "Thanks to the liberal ity of a generous donor, the disciples of Hege sippe Simon are now enabled to erect a statue in his honor. We de sire to inscribe your name as an honor ary member of the committee to cele brate the centenary of this great ed ucator of democracy."

Biraute received letters of accept ance from a large number of deputies, senators and ministers.—St. Louis Post Dispatch.

"The principal vegetable and mineral products in America are tinned meat and borking strictors."

"The temperate zone is the region where no one drinks too much."

Blind Obedience.

"I have often wondered," remarked Mrs. Rogers, "how a horse feels. A horse hasn't any idea what is going to happen to him when he is harnessed. He doesn't know how far he is going or what he is going for. To be driven hither and thither, blindly, seemingly without purpose, with no idea of what it's all about or when it will be over—how must the poor creature feel—what must he think about it all?"

"I suppose," said Mr. Rogers wearily, "that he must feel just as I do when you take me on a shopping expedition with you!"—London Mail.

Studied Insult.

"I wish," said the waiter who had been serving the man with the grim face and the pert looking girl, "I could think of some way to get even with that fellow. He complained about everything I put on the table and growled about every move I made."

"What did his bill amount to?"

"A dollar and ninety cents."

"And how much money did he hand you?"

"A two dollar bill."

"It's easy. Have it in two nickels when you return his change."—Chica go Herald.

LUXURY IN ARGENTINA.

The Big Story They Tell of a Buenos Aires Hotel Charges.

The hotels of Buenos Aires are fairly good and very expensive. One of the cheapest rooms I saw in the Plaza hotel was $7 a day, European style. There are good Spanish hotels with rooms from $2 a day upward.

The Plaza is, perhaps, the most cosmopolitan of all the hostleries of the city. In its ballroom and its drawing room I was reminded of the Waldorf-Astoria. The meals are a little higher than in the big hotels of New York city. But there are numerous small restaurants where good refreshments may be had at reasonable prices.

As an example of the charges in the big hotels of Buenos Aires I may quote a story told me by an Argentine official. He said that some years ago a commission of European ambassadors was entertained by the Argentine government at the Bristol hotel on the Avenida de Mayo and that the bill for soap and perfumery was $15,000 a week. Nobody seemed to complain and apparently everybody was satisfied.

Luxuries seem to be necessities to the Argentines, for I was told that the tariff on champagne is only 2 per cent, while that on a plow is 50 per cent.—National Magazine.

WHAT WILL RUSSIA DO?

Berlin, July 27.—All eyes in Ger many are directed toward St. Peters burg. "What will Russia do?" is the question that was asked probably a million times with bated breath and hearts almost standing still in fear the answer will mean the long dreaded war. This was the sole topic in Ber lin and all German cities and towns.

Scenes here were patriotic ones, such as have not been seen since the victorious days of 1870. The city is in an atmosphere of suspense and suppressed emotions. These found an occasional vent in patriotic outbursts, but the general feeling was that the country is on the edge of a volcano. This feeling was intensified by the first war extra of the Lokal Anzeiger, which is known as the kaiser's paper. It was stated in this edition that private reports from St. Petersburg were so serious that the paper would not print them until they had been con firmed.

Monuments of Bismarck, Von Molt ke and Von Roen and the Column of Victory were the gathering places of the people of Berlin. The principal streets were a mass of moving human ity, especially in Unter den Linden.

FAITH IN KAISER

London, July 27.—A St. Petersburg dispatch says the kaiser made a secret visit to Stockholm in connection with the present crisis, and had an inter view with M. Viviani, the French pre mier. The visit was of overwhelming importance. It is believed the kaiser's action will facilitate a solution of the threatening situation without involving Europe in war.

SAY PEACE IS SECURE

St. Petersburg, July 27.—Although everybody is talking war, such official views as can be obtained profess to believe that peace will not be broken. Preliminary steps towards the mobiliza tion of the Russian army have been taken, but nothing definite can be stated, as a decree has been issued forbidding the publication or trans mission of any detailed information in regard to the army or navy for a year from date. There is great activity at the war office, the admiralty and the foreign office. It is reported that con tinuous wireless messages are being exchanged between the foreign office and President Poincare and Premier Viviani of France, who are on a bat tleship on the way from Stockholm to France.

Speaking of "Grandpa"

Periodically the mother, the father and the mother-in-law each are brought forward as the subject of discussion in prose and in verse. Some literary light, and it matters not whether he be obscure or famous, starts the discussion and the subject chosen travels the rounds.

Just now "grandpa" is the subject of word sketch and comment—mostly favorable of course—in the press both by editors and contributors.

Since the subject has been suggested, grandpa is a grand character. He has more sympathy with youth, enters more heartily into the every day life of the boys and girls, seems to understand better what they want and is very much more lenient than father is, in fact very much more of a companion with his grandchildren than even he was as a father, grandpa is the champion of the grandchild in almost every case from the cradle on through life.

Grandpa seems to know just what the grandchild wants and he usually succeeds as a confederate in bringing every wholesome thing around just as the grandchild desires even, if necessary, forming a secret alliance to accomplish it.

Grandpa is at once the admiration of the youngsters and the despair of the parents. The father and mother cannot, as a rule, understand how grandpa can be so indulgent when as a father he was so severe.

But, after all is said and done, that is not such a difficult problem to solve. Generally speaking grandpa's working days are over. He has time to enjoy the children and take an interest in them. He is with them hours where the father can only spare a few minutes. He lives in the present and in the past—the joys of life are his chief concern, he is through worrying about the future and has learned in the school of life that fighting against the inevitable is as hopeless a task as it is a wearing one, while father is kept busy every minute of the day, if he amounts to much, providing for the family and laying aside a few pennies for the rainy day. Father's mind is crowded to capacity with the stern problems of life and in wrestling a living from the world. The children are to be provided for and that takes all of his energy and thought.

What more natural, more beautiful, more ideal, after the father, by all the rules of this game of life, is barred from that companionship with his children, which natural love demands, should spend the twilight of life in the full enjoyment of that happy state which comes only to grandfathers.

Perhaps grandfather does carry it a little to extremes—a little farther than is good for the discipline of the child, in the estimation of the parents—but doesn't he have a good time though?

And don't the children think grandpa is just about all right?

Sum it all up, isn't grandfather about all right in the majority of instances? He's in for anything and the little disappointments which fret and annoy father have no more effect on him than water on a duck's back. He is resourceful and can adopt himself to almost any circumstance.

No wonder grandpa is such a prime favorite in every household.

He deserves to be just as popular as he is and there is not nearly so much danger that he will "spoil" the grandchildren as anxious parents fear.

Grandpa deserves all the adoration which loving grandchildren bestow upon him—he delivers the real goods.

Childhood without a "grandpa" is a desert. Any child who has not had a "grandpa" has missed a good deal of the real joy of life.

Poetry For Today

THE CRICKET'S SONG.

When the birds have left the wood-land,
And the flowers begin to fade;
When the twilight shadows lengthen
In the meadow and the glade;
There's a merry little singer
That whene'er your footsteps pass,
Sends a cheery note of greeting
From his home down in the grass.

Just a common little cricket,
Brown and lowly, it is true;
But there's meaning in the message
That he has for me and you;
Don't forget to sing, my brother,
Just because the summer's o'er;
That's the time to sound your praises
Even louder than before.

"Hear me down among the grasses
Brown and sere, that once were green.
You'd most think I'd be discouraged
When I view the barren scene
But the song—that's worth the singing
Can be sung when skies are drear
Just as well as in the brightness
Of the springtime of the year."
—Nellie M. Coe.

Wanted to Be Safe.

Tom Jackson had participated in a narrow escape from death, due to an accident which happened while he was crossing to Liverpool. It was, therefore, with much fear and hesitancy that he decided to return home.

Approaching the porter hurriedly at the last minute, he was told that he was too late for a stateroom. "The last one was just taken," announced that worthy.

"Stateroom?" queried the frightened passenger. "Who wants a stateroom? Give me a reserved seat in a lifeboat." —Buffalo Express.

A Painful Process.

Little Prescott had been leaning out of an upstairs window.

"Come away from the window, son," his father said sternly. "You might fall out and get a hump on your back—like the camels you saw yesterday."

The little boy was silent for a few minutes. Then he asked, "Father, do all the little camels have to fall out the window to get their humps?" —New York Post.

Argued Too Long.

"Why did you permit yourself to be drawn into a long argument with your assailant?" asked the policeman.

"A long dispute was just what I was trying to avoid when I called him a liar," explained the man on the hospital cot. —Buffalo Express.

Too Soon and Too Late.

"What became of that play you wrote five years ago?"

"The managers decided it was too daring to produce."

"Send it on again."

"I did. They say it's too tame now." —Pittsburgh Post.

M'ADOO TO LOAN CASH

Will Offer Millions to Banks on Generous Terms.

Washington, July 27.—Secretary of Treasury McAdoo is going to repeat his crop loan stunt of last year. He announced that he had decided to offer the national banks of the country for the use in crop movement and other legitimate business $34,000,000 from the general fund of the treasury. The loans are to be available immediately. Interest at the rate of 2 per cent a year will be charged for them. The offered amount will be increased if necessary.

The crop loans this year are to be conditioned even more generously than last year. Government, state, municipal and railroad bonds, acceptable to the secretary, and approved commercial paper will be accepted as security at 75 per cent of their face value, and no requirement will be made, as was done last year, that 10 per cent of the deposits be secured by government bonds.

Mr. McAdoo announced at the end of the last crop moving period that an immense benefit had been conferred upon the country by the government's loans.

LIGHTSHIP PERILS.

Safety of the Vessel and Its Crew Is the Last Consideration.

Among the unsung heroes of this country are the members of the light-house service, which is entirely distinct from the life saving service. The entire lighthouse corps designed to warn ships of danger points covers 100,000 miles of coast line and reaches from Alaska to Panama, the maintenance of it costing approximately $6,000,000 a year. It has about 13,000 "aids to navigation," including light-houses, lightships, bell buoys, tenders, submarine signals, and fog signals.

A lightship must be kept always in one particular place. Anchored to the bottom of the sea, she has her steam always up, but she never sails unless relieved by another ship so that she may put into port for repairs. And such a boat is used because a warning must be given at a place where it is impossible to build a lighthouse and where even the clamor of a gigantic bell buoy is not sufficient to warn the navigator. No matter how fiercely the storm beats or how desperate may be the boat's plight, she must stay at her moorings. The only movement she is allowed to make under the regulations is to sink when at last she can withstand the gale no longer.

Throughout the service, both in the lightships and on the vessels, there is one object, one dominating creed—to keep the light burning and the whistle blowing. This is the supreme work of the men's existence. And it would bring them deserved recognition if the government ever published a list of those who have lost their lives in the line of such perilous duty.

For about $6,000,000 a year these men and their craft save from disaster the billions of dollars' worth of shipping and commerce that come to American shores.—Popular Magazine.

An Excellent Reason.

One of the stories about the late Sir Douglas Straight, the veteran journalist, relates to one of the early papers he was connected with.

He was crossing Waterloo bridge one day with a friend when he suddenly marched up to a couple of newsboys and soundly boxed their ears.

His friend, amazed at this proceeding, naturally asked him what he meant by it. "They were selling your paper," he pointed out.

"Yes, I know they were," was the reply, "but they weren't shouting it loud enough!"—London Globe.

The avarice of the miser may be termed the grand sepulcher of all his other passions.

Education Not Result of Haphazard Growth

By Professor L. M. PASSANO of Massachusetts Institute of Technology

Must Point Way to Emancipation of Classes

By Rabbi STEPHEN S. WISE of New York

THE advocates of the scientific management of education have not sufficiently studied the conditions of the problem and do not understand the problem, even from their own viewpoint. Modern educational institutions and methods are not a fortuitous result of haphazard growth. They are the result of the study and experience of many generations of men.

THE SCIENTIFIC MANAGERS WOULD REPLACE EXPERIENCE BY EXPERIMENT. THEY ARE QUITE SURE THEY CAN FUNCTIONALIZE STUDENT AND TEACHER INTO CONTINUAL ACTIVITY, APPARATUS INTO PERPETUAL MOTION AND FLOOR SPACE INTO CONTINUOUS USE. LIKE THE SUBURBANITE, THEY WILL MAKE TWO BLADES OF GRASS GROW WHERE ONLY ONE OUGHT TO.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN fought a battle against caste, and that is what we must do today to obtain a purer brand of democracy. Lincoln obtained the freedom of a race; we must point the way to the emancipation of the classes.

BY CLASSES I MEAN NOT ONLY THE RICH AS DISTINGUISHED FROM THE POOR, BUT THE MAN WHO HAS A COLLEGE EDUCATION AS DISTINGUISHED FROM THE MAN THAT NEVER HAD THAT OPPORTUNITY. COLLEGES NEED TO BE REFORMED ABOUT AS MUCH AS ANY INSTITUTIONS I KNOW IF THE MEN GRADUATING FROM THEM ARE GOING TO BE EQUIPPED TO TAKE PART IN THE "UP-LIFT."

If I were a college president the students would not fritter away their time spending $10,000 a year.

SUNDAY QUARREL ENDS IN MURDER ON J. H. ALLEN FARM

Sheriff South, Deputy and Coroner, of Clinton County, Summoned From This City Yesterday Afternoon to Locate John Williams, Wanted for Murder of Frank Stradley on "Doc" Allen Farm.

Sheriff Ben South, the deputy sheriff and the Coroner of Clinton county, who were in this city to attend the ball game Sunday afternoon, were hurriedly summoned to take up their official duties in Western Clinton where Frank Stradley, 30, was shot and almost instantly killed by John Williams, who resides on the 700 acre farm of J. H. Allen of this city.

The shooting occurred early in the afternoon, and was the result of a quarrel over some money which Stradley claimed was due him from Williams. It is claimed that Williams, who is 60 years of age, shot Stradley in the back of the head as Stradley was in the act of going into the house. His wife heard the shot and rushed to the door to find her husband's body.

Sheriff South and his deputy hurried from this city to the scene, but found that Williams had disappeared, and with a posse of citizens from the neighborhood in which the crime was committed, he started a search for the missing man, but up to latest reports had not located him.

The Allen farm is midway between Midland City and Blanchester, and Williams was one of several tenants who reside on the farm. He is formerly from Pike county and has a large family.

The dead man was also employed on the Allen farm, and leaves a widow and five small children. He was 30 years old.

It is claimed that immediately after the shooting Williams ran to his house, told his wife of the trouble, and left at once for parts unknown. The delay occasioned by the presence of the officers in this county allowed the man to escape.

RAIN PUTS HOOKS INTO BALL GAME

Fifteen Hundred Persons Huddle together in Grandstand, Along Fences and on Verandas of Neighborhood While Liveliest Shower of Season Coaxes the Grain Crops and Makes Puddle Out of Ball Diamond—Game Stopped After First Inning.

Fifteen hundred persons, disappointed and generally miserable, packed like so many sardines in the grand stand and along the fences at the ball park Sunday afternoon during the heavy showers and on verandas all along Columbus avenue, could be found small knots of foiled fans who huddled together in an effort to thwart the driving mist and who lifted their voices in concert against one Jupiter Pluvius who had no consideration of a championship game of ball.

The afternoon started off bright and sunny and of the fans who were taken in by the friendly attitude of the elements nearly seventy-five per cent were at the park before 2 o'clock. Of these a fourth at least represented Wilmington supporters and fans from all along the line. The game started shortly after 2 o'clock with a warm sun, a clear sky, and everything favorable. A few minutes later a solid mass of black storm clouds, coming apparently from nowhere in particular and with an amazing suddenness, overspread the sky and the downpour started at the conclusion of the first inning. Five hundred other fans who were not aware of the fact that the game would start earlier than usual had not yet started for the park and were spared the wrath of Jupiter.

After the first hard shower an effort was made to get the diamond in shape again but another and more severe downpour put an end to this. The ball park had the appearance of a hog wallow and many of the crammed fans in the grand stand were soaked through by the rain which blew through the netting at the front and sides.

Hundreds of shoes, fancy stockings and socks, silk shirts and gowns, debutante hats and other apparel in a mode suffered the rage of the weather god and many a shop girl and soda clerk will have to go on diet in Washington for a few weeks to replenish their wardrobes.

The Wilmington players left Sunday evening and with them their loyal but dejected supporters. They were sorely disappointed but perhaps no more so than the local fans and it is to be hoped they will re-

SERIOUS ACCIDENT NEAR MT. STERLING

An ugly motorcycle accident occurred near Mt. Sterling, late Saturday afternoon, when two unknown men were badly injured when the motorcycle they were riding, went into the ditch.

The men were discovered by Doan Powless and Burnett Hyer, of this city, and they rendered assistance to the pair of unfortunate cyclists.

When found one of the men was still in the ditch in an unconscious condition, while the other was standing in the middle of the road signaling for help. The man in the ditch had his skull fractured, it is claimed, while the other had one wrist broken, his chin all but cut off and a ragged scalp wound. Both were covered with blood, and were taken to Mt. Sterling, where medical attention was rendered.

The man who was not unconscious stated that it was his machine, and that the man behind had dropped one foot down upon the road, causing the cycle to swerve into the ditch.

FRANKFORT ELEVATOR STRUCK AND BURNED

Sunday afternoon during the heavy electrical storm which passed over this and adjoining counties, lightning struck the grain elevator of Elias Hutton, at Frankfort, and the building together with 7,000 bushels of wheat was destroyed, entailing a loss of fully $15,000.

The loss was only partly covered by insurance.

DOG CREATES SOME EXCITEMENT

A dog said to be suffering from hydrophobia, but which probably had been poisoned, created quite a little excitement on North North street Sunday night, and was followed for some distance and killed by residents of the street.

For a short time much excitement was occasioned by the strange actions of the dog.

COUNTY SCHOOL BOARD HOLDS FIRST MEETING

A lengthy meeting of the County Board of Education was held at the court house Saturday night, most of the time being occupied with discussions, little business being transacted, and arrangements being made for a meeting at the court house at one o'clock next Saturday afternoon, when members of the various boards of Education in the county will be present, and the matter of districting the county will be taken up.

All members were present, with President Wilson Morris in the chair. The meeting opened at eight o'clock. County Superintendent Frank M. Allen was secretary of the board.

Following the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting, member W. E. Smith, of Milledgeville, presented a petition signed by F. E. Hidy, U. G. Rankin, Ed. Sheridan, C. C. Andrews, Phil. Uhrig and A. B. Johnson—all presidents of boards of education, asking for the resignation of President Morris. The petitioners stated that they had voted for Mr. Morris with the belief that he would support a certain candidate for County Superintendent, and had not done so.

He moved that the Board join the petitioners in the demand for the resignation of Mr. Morris. Member Minnick seconded the motion, and the matter was argued at considerable length, and resulted in the president ruling the motion out of order. The minutes, which were admitted to be a correct record of the previous proceedings, were eventually approved. Morris, Long and Wilson voting to approve, and Smith and Minnick against the approval.

The objections of Member Smith were made part of the record of the meeting. The question of what should be done toward districting the county was then taken up, and discussed, with the result that it was decided to hold a meeting Saturday afternoon and go into the details more thoroughly.

PRESENCE OF MIND SAVES AGED WOMAN

Mrs. Agnes Hartman, 82, was painfully burned at her home on Court street Saturday evening while attempting to brush off some gasoline which had escaped from a tank overhead, from the base of a gasoline stove. The paper ignited and instantly the arms of the aged woman were enveloped in flames.

Before the flames could burn deeply into the flesh she had smothered them in her skirts. Her injuries, while painful, are not serious.

FUNERAL SERVICES OF MRS. JANE OGLE

Mrs. Mary Jane Ogle, second daughter of Aseneth and Samuel F. Yeoman, pioneer residents of this city, who died at the old homestead place on Washington Avenue Thursday morning, was laid to rest at sunset Saturday evening.

Simple and beautiful services, in accordance with her wishes, were conducted by Rev. A. W. West of the First Baptist church, in the same room in which Mary Jane Yeoman had been married to Theodore Ogle in 1857.

The funeral was private, with only close friends gathered around the quiet sleeper and by request only the flowers used were those which bespoke the affection of her nearest and dearest.

The pastor read the scriptures which Mrs. Ogle had chosen, part of the Fourteenth Chapter of John and the Twenty-third Psalm, and at the Washington Cemetery, where the burial was made in the family lot, read Tennyson's hymn, "Crossing the Bar."

The pall bearers were Mr. F. D. McKinniss, of Marion, Dr. R. M. Hughey, Messrs Frank L. Stutson, D. T. McLean, Roy Haglar and Sherman Bishop.

Four children of the seven which were born to Mr. and Mrs. Ogle, survive their mother, Comly, Joseph, Earle and Grace, and all were present for the sunset farewell.

Mrs. Harry Matthews and children of Columbus, are the guests of Mrs. Matthews' mother, Mrs. Belle Smith, enroute to Chicago, where they join Mr. Matthews to make their future home.

Care of Pearls.

One of the representatives of a famous jewelry firm gives a word of advice upon the preservation and treatment of pearls. Upon no account, he said, should they be locked up in a safe or other dark place for lengthy periods, since such treatment soon causes them to lose their "life" and become dull. If their fair owners find that for some reason or other they cannot wear them outside their garments they should make a point of wearing them underneath the dress next to the skin. Constant contact with the human skin gives to the stones light, luster, gloss and sheen. The best possible way to keep the pearls in a perfect state of preservation, as well as to prolong their life, is to wear them always, both by night and by day.—London Tit-Bits.

The Cruel Lie.

When Disraeli was nearing his end a young disciple said to him: "Master, what is the unpardonable sin? Is it not a lie?" The astute and subtle statesman, in the shadow of the grave, looked at the young man with deep, unfathomable eyes and answered: "No, a lie is not the unpardonable sin. The unpardonable sin is the cruel lie."

On the borders of that shadowy land where great things grow small and little things loom large on the horizon he had come to know that the crime that is not forgiven is the brutal instinct that impels us to wound, to embitter, to mortify.

The modern whist fiend seems colorless beside that enthusiastic exponent of the game, Sarah Battle, whom Charles Lamb describes in his "Essays

PRESS PAYS TRIBUTE TO LATE REV. ARCHIBALD ROSS

Funeral services of the late Rev. Archibald Ross, D. D., LL. D., father of Rev. Frederick E. Ross, of this city, were held from the Bushwick Avenue Congregational church, Brooklyn, N. Y., and interment was made in the Evergreens Cemetery, Brooklyn.

In the death of Rev. Ross Brooklyn lost one of her best known and most loved citizens, and a man whose name was by no means confined to Brooklyn, as indicated by the following brief history of his life, which is from the Newtown Register, of Thursday, July 23:

"The recent death of Rev. Archibald Ross, D. D., of Brooklyn, removes from the religious and literary life of the city a character of rare interest.

"He was best known to the residents of the old town of Newtown through the interesting and instructive articles which appeared from time to time in the Register, and by his self-sacrificing and noble religious work in the Middle Village.

"When he came to that community some 25 years ago as pastor of the Methodist church, he found that church society in a very run-down condition and almost dead, so much so that the entire abandonment of the church was being seriously considered.

"Mr. Ross went to work with such vigor that he soon inspired others, and with him as their leader the church officers rallied to the rescue and the church was soon restored to its oldtime vigor. He labored for several years in Middle Village, and it is largely owing to his untiring efforts that the church is now in its present flourishing condition.

"Dr. Ross was born in Charlotte-town, Prince Edwards Island, in 1835. Educated in private and public schools in Canada, he studied theology in Queens' University, Kingston, Canada, and subsequently entered the ministry of the Presbyterian Church. Coming with his family to New York in 1876, he supplied several well known pulpits and became active in platform work.

"Never robust in health, he was compelled to renounce the work of the ministry, devoting his time intermittently to newspaper and literary work. He will be recalled as a frequent contributor to the Standard Union, Evening Post, Newtown Register, and other papers. His literary attainments were large, his insight almost unerring, his range broad and his style at once racy and luminous. If at times abstruse and remote, it was because of his marked philosophical bias.

"However, he possessed the rare faculty of translating philosophy into terms of life, and this was one of the secrets of his power as a writer. "He was of Highland Scotch descent, possessing all the fire and fervor of the Celt. Steeped in the spirit and letter of English poetry, he early acquired a style marked by purity and elevation of thought. His muse was refined and vigorous and his art never sank to the level of art for art's sake. To him poetry was the hand maid of religion, and what God had joined together he dare not put asunder.

"In 1904 he issued 'Duty and Others Poems,' a volume of surpassing poetic interest and power. On almost every page there are gems of truth fit to be inscribed among the classics of the English language. Some of the most noted poems in this volume are: 'Duty,' 'Hope,' 'Charity,' 'Cygnus,' 'The Soul's Up-look,' 'The Response,' 'William of Orange,' etc.

"A later volume was called 'Life Sketches,' a series of fascinating incidents, journeys afoot, anecdotes, etc. There is life and color on every page of the book and no one can read it without seeing the author possessed literary genius of a high order.

"Like most poetic temperments Dr. Ross was wanting in business capacity. The commercial spirit was foreign to his nature, and his talents were never properly recognized or capitalized. It is freely conceded that only this lack of a business faculty prevented him from acquiring large means.

"His 'Philosophy of Deep Breathing' was a well-matured utterance on the health value of proper breathing and walking exercises. Twenty-five years later a gentleman of the medical profession traversed the same ground—not exactly a pioneer.

"He was widely known as a pedestrian. Walking to him was a genuine pleasure, for many years it being his rule to walk from five to ten miles each day. The late Mayor Gaynor is said to have taken up the practice of extensive walking largely through Dr. Ross' influence.

"As poet, preacher and pedestrian he was an original and virile man. Perhaps his supreme aim for many years was to make others happy. Thousands of humble homes were gladdened by his visits. The little children loved him because of his unfeigned interest in them, and a notable incident of his funeral was a beautiful floral offering from his 'countless little friends.'

"He leaves behind him three children, Archibald Ross, Jr., Jesse E. Ross, and Rev. Frederick E. Ross, D. D., of the Ohio Methodist Episcopal Conference, a well known minister."

In Social Circles

The beautiful home of Mr. H. K. Stewart, "Spring Hill Farm" was the scene of a delightful surprise party upon the occasion of Mr. Stewart's birthday, Sunday evening.

The affair had been planned by Mrs. Stewart and sister, Miss Lora Martin, about twenty relatives and intimate friends invited and taking Mr. Stewart completely by surprise.

The evening was one of much pleasure, the large grounds and verandahs and the always cordial hospitality of the Stewart's so inviting that the guests lingered late in the evening and left wishing their host many happy returns of the day.

A delicious summer collation and a big bowl of punch proved refreshing.

Miss Margaret Fullerton of Columbus was an out of town guest.

Mrs. Will Morgan pleasantly entertained the girls of the Tau Mu Tau club in farewell to her guest, Miss Marie Mobley, of Hope Ark.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Thompson entertained with an elegant dinner on Sunday.

An orange and white color scheme was used in decoration. Seated with the host and hostess were Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Baughn and son Roy, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hays and son Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Oth Dawson, Mr. S. D. Barr and Mr. Leonard Bass, of Austin.

Mr. and Mrs. Almer Hegler entertained with a very beautiful dinner at their home on the Chillicothe pike Sunday.

A flat design of American beauty roses and fern was singularly effective in table decorations. Seated with the host and hostess were Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Parrett, Mr. Roy Haglar and family, Mr. and Mrs. Val McCoy, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Howat and daughter Miss Jean, Miss Rose McLean, Miss Mary Robinson and guest Miss Katharine McKibben, of Cynthia, Ky., Misses Edith, Mable and Grace Pavey, of Columbus, Messrs. Howard Haglar and Arthur Staubus.

Miss Virginia Campbell entertained the girls of the algonquin club Saturday evening at a handsome six o'clock dinner.

THANKS FOR A FAVOR.

The Lady and the Baker and a Little Bit of a Surprise.

It was after dark, and the French baker was about to close his shop when the telephone bell rang.

"Mr. Owens?"

"Yes, ma'am."

"This is Mrs. Jimley of Hickorynut street."

"Yes, Mrs. Jimley."

"I am giving a supper tonight, and I discover that I need half a dozen more rolls. Could I trouble you to send them over?"

"I'm sorry, ma'am, but I haven't a roll left in the store nor even a loaf of bread. We are sold clear out tonight."

"This is very provoking," said Mrs. Jimley. "Are you sure you haven't anything that would do?"

"There isn't a thing in the place that I would care to sell you, ma'am. Hold on, though. There's a half dozen fresh rolls on my own supper table right now. I could let you have those if you think they would do. My kids can eat crackers instead. They'd rather, anyway."

"Those will do very nicely, Mr. Owens. Will you send them over soon, please?"

"Right away, ma'am. The boy has gone for the night, but I'll take them to you myself."

In a minute or two he stood on her front steps ringing the bell and feeling well pleased with himself that he could do some one a kindness.

Mrs. Jimley opened the door and took the packages from his hands. Then she said in icy tones:

"The next time you bring any goods here, Mr. Owens, I wish you would remember to ring the basement bell. I can't have tradesmen coming to the front door."—Newark News.

He Knew.

"If I were you," his wife said, "I'd go to that man and tell him exactly what I thought of him. He lied to you, and you ought to tell him that you know it. If I were you I'd let him know just how I despised him. I'd have the satisfaction of making him feel ashamed of himself."

"No, my dear," he replied, "you wouldn't do anything of the kind. If you were me you'd do just as I'm doing. This fellow weighs fifty pounds more than I do, and they tell me he's one of the best boxers in this town."—Chicago Record Herald.

Wyoming Has Many High Mountains.

Wyoming has nine mountains exceeding 13,000 feet in height and of these three approach the 14,000 foot mark, according to the United States geological survey. They are Gannett peak, 13,785 feet; Grand Teton, 13,747 feet, and Fremont peak, 13,730 feet. Cloud peak, one of the most beautiful mountains in the state, is 13,730 feet above sea level. Besides these mountains Wyoming has thirty-one other named peaks upward of 12,000 feet in height and some forty unnamed mountains which exceed that altitude.

An interesting story might be written of the thousands of lofty unnamed mountain peaks of the west which are nearly double the height of the very highest mountains in the entire Appalachian mountain system in the eastern portion of the country. Colorado alone has dozens of mountains without name which are more than double the height of our most lofty eastern mountain.

SUNDAY QUARREL ENDS IN MURDER ON J. H. ALLEN FARM

Sheriff South, Deputy and Coroner, of Clinton County, Summoned From This City Yesterday Afternoon to Locate John Williams, Wanted for Murder of Frank Stradley on "Doc" Allen Farm.

Sheriff Ben South, the deputy sheriff and the Coroner of Clinton county, who were in this city to attend the ball game Sunday afternoon, were hurriedly summoned to take up their official duties in Western Clinton where Frank Stradley, 30, was shot and almost instantly killed by John Williams, who resides on the 700 acre farm of J. H. Allen of this city.

The shooting occurred early in the afternoon, and was the result of a quarrel over some money which Stradley claimed was due him from Williams. It is claimed that Williams, who is 60 years of age, shot Stradley in the back of the head as Stradley was in the act of going into the house. His wife heard the shot and rushed to the door to find her husband's body.

Sheriff South and his deputy hurried from this city to the scene, but found that Williams had disappeared, and with a posse of citizens from the neighborhood in which the crime was committed, he started a search for the missing man, but up to latest reports had not located him.

The Allen farm is midway between Midland City and Blanchester, and Williams was one of several tenants who reside on the farm. He is formerly from Pike county and has a large family.

The dead man was also employed on the Allen farm, and leaves a widow and five small children. He was 30 years old.

It is claimed that immediately after the shooting Williams ran to his house, told his wife of the trouble, and left at once for parts unknown. The delay occasioned by the presence of the officers in this county allowed the man to escape.

First Inning.

The play of the one inning, Sunday, is given below. Neither side scored.

WILMINGTON.

Turner burned a liner to Runnels who dropped it allowing the batter the first station. Borderwish grounded to Linson and went out at first, advancing Turner. C. Haley walked and Grandle fanned. Hagerty caught Haley napping at first. No runs.

WASHINGTON.

Corwin to Grandle to Arthur. Adams to Arthur. Noon to Grandle to Arthur. No runs.

Manager Noon has scheduled a game next Sunday with the fast Dayton, Ky., nine that played a thirteen inning game here last year.

All rainchecks issued Sunday will be good at any game this season.

DEATH CLAIMS

J. G. SMITH

After an illness of several months Mr. J. G. Smith answered the eternal summons Sunday afternoon at half past two o'clock, at his residence on N. Fayette street.

He was 59 years of age and until the last two weeks refused to give up and was actively engaged in business as traveling salesman with the Ash, Noyse and Small Shoe Co., of Auburn Me., of which firm he was a member.

A popular business man and genial courteous gentleman, Mr. Smith's death will be learned with regret by many friends. He is survived by a widow and two children, Mrs. George Schneyer, of Dayton, and Frank.

The funeral services will not be held until Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock, owing to the fact that Mr. M. C. Small, of the Ash, Noyse and Small Co., cannot reach here until that time.

Rev. Hennessy will conduct the services at the residence and burial will be in the Washington cemetery.

LAWRENCE ROBINSON LAID TO REST TODAY

The final chapter in the life of Lawrence Robinson was closed Monday morning when his remains, which arrived in this city Saturday evening on the 6:14 train, were laid to rest in the family lot in the Washington cemetery.

Brief funeral services were held in the cemetery Chapel, with Rev. P. J. Hennessy in charge. The young widow was unable to attend the services, but had visited the mortuary Sunday.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT NEAR MT. STERLING

An ugly motorcycle accident occurred near Mt. Sterling, late Saturday afternoon, when two unknown men were badly injured when the motorcycle they were riding, went into the ditch.

The men were discovered by Doan Powless and Burnett Hyer, of this city, and they rendered assistance to the pair of unfortunate cyclists.

When found one of the men was still in the ditch in an unconscious condition, while the other was standing in the middle of the road signaling for help. The man in the ditch had his skull fractured, it is claimed, while the other had one wrist broken, his chin all but cut off and a ragged scalp wound. Both were covered with blood, and were taken to Mt. Sterling, where medical attention was rendered.

The man who was not unconscious stated that it was his machine, and that the man behind had dropped one foot down upon the road, causing the cycle to swerve into the ditch.

FRANKFORT ELEVATOR STRUCK AND BURNED

Sunday afternoon during the heavy electrical storm which passed over this and adjoining counties, lightning struck the grain elevator of Elias Hutton, at Frankfort, and the building together with 7,000 bushels of wheat was destroyed, entailing a loss of fully $15,000.

The loss was only partly covered by insurance.

DOG CREATES SOME EXCITEMENT

A dog said to be suffering from hydrophobia, but which probably had been poisoned, created quite a little excitement on North North street Sunday night, and was followed for some distance and killed by residents of the street.

For a short time much excitement was occasioned by the strange actions of the dog.

COUNTY SCHOOL BOARD HOLDS FIRST MEETING

A lengthy meeting of the County Board of Education was held at the court house Saturday night, most of the time being occupied with discussions, little business being transacted, and arrangements being made for a meeting at the court house at one o'clock next Saturday afternoon, when members of the various boards of Education in the county will be present, and the matter of districting the county will be taken up.

All members were present, with President Wilson Morris in the chair. The meeting opened at eight o'clock. County Superintendent Frank M. Allen was secretary of the board. Following the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting, member W. E. Smith, of Milledgeville, presented a petition signed by F. E. Hidy, U. G. Rankin, Ed. Sheridan, C. C. Andrews, Phil. Uhrig and A. B. Johnson—all presidents of boards of education, asking for the resignation of President Morris. The petitioners stated that they had voted for Mr. Morris with the belief that he would support a certain candidate for County Superintendent, and had not done so.

He moved that the Board join the petitioners in the demand for the resignation of Mr. Morris. Member Minnick seconded the motion, and the matter was argued at considerable length, and resulted in the president ruling the motion out of order. The minutes, which were admitted to be a correct record of the previous proceedings, were eventually approved, Morris, Long and Wilson voting to approve, and Smith and Minnick against the approval.

The objections of Member Smith were made part of the record of the meeting. The question of what should be done toward districting the county was then taken up, and discussed, with the result that it was decided to hold a meeting Saturday afternoon and go into the details more thoroughly.

PRESENCE OF MIND SAVES AGED WOMAN

Mrs. Agnes Hartman, 82, was painfully burned at her home on Court street Saturday evening while attempting to brush off some gasoline which had escaped from a tank overhead, from the base of a gasoline stove. The paper ignited and instantly the arms of the aged woman were enveloped in flames.

Before the flames could burn deeply into the flesh she had smothered them in her skirts. Her injuries, while painful, are not serious.

FUNERAL SERVICES OF MRS. JANE OGLE

Mrs. Mary Jane Ogle, second daughter of Aseneth and Samuel F. Yeoman, pioneer residents of this city, who died at the old homestead place on Washington Avenue Thursday morning, was laid to rest at sunset Saturday evening.

Simple and beautiful services, in accordance with her wishes, were conducted by Rev. A. W. West of the First Baptist church, in the same room in which Mary Jane Yeoman had been married to Theodore Ogle in 1857.

The funeral was private, with only close friends gathered around the quiet sleeper and by request only the flowers used were those which bespoke the affection of her nearest and dearest.

The pastor read the scriptures which Mrs. Ogle had chosen, part of the Fourteenth Chapter of John and the Twenty-third Psalm, and at the Washington Cemetery, where the burial was made in the family lot, read Tennyson's hymn, "Crossing the Bar."

The pall bearers were Mr. F. D. McKinniss, of Marion, Dr. R. M. Hughey, Messrs Frank L. Stutson, D. T. McLean, Roy Haglar and Sherman Bishop.

Four children of the seven which were born to Mr. and Mrs. Ogle, survive their mother, Comly, Joseph, Earle and Grace, and all were present for the sunset farewell.

Mrs. Harry Matthews and children of Columbus, are the guests of Mrs. Matthews' mother, Mrs. Belle Smith, enroute to Chicago, where they join Mr. Matthews to make their future home.

RAIN PUTS HOOKS INTO BALL GAME

Fifteen Hundred Persons Huddle together in Grandstand, Along Fences and on Verandas of Neighborhood While Liveliest Shower of Season Coaxes the Grain Crops and Makes Puddle Out of Ball Diamond—Game Stopped After First Inning.

Fifteen hundred persons, disappointed and generally miserable, packed like so many sardines in the grand stand and along the fences at the ball park Sunday afternoon during the heavy showers and on verandas all along Columbus avenue, could be found small knots of felled fans who huddled together in an effort to thwart the driving mist and who lifted their voices in concert against one Jupiter Pluvius who had no consideration of a championship game of ball.

The afternoon started off bright and sunny and of the fans who were taken in by the friendly attitude of the elements nearly seventy-five per cent were at the park before 2 o'clock. Of these a fourth at least represented Wilmington supporters and fans from all along the line. The game started shortly after 2 o'clock with a warm sun, a clear sky, and everything favorable. A few minutes later a solid mass of black storm clouds, coming apparently from nowhere in particular and with an amazing suddenness, overspread the sky and the downpour started at the conclusion of the first inning. Five hundred other fans who were not aware of the fact that the game would start earlier than usual had not yet started for the park and were spared the wrath of Jupiter.

After the first hard shower an effort was made to get the diamond in shape again but another and more severe downpour put an end to this. The ball park had the appearance of a hog wallow and many of the crammed fares in the grand stand were soaked through by the rain which blew through the netting at the front and sides.

Hundreds of shoes, fancy stockings and socks, silk shirts and gowns, debutante hats and other apparel la mode suffered the rage of the weather god and many a shop girl and soda clerk will have to go on diet in Washington for a few weeks to replenish their wardrobes.

The Wilmington players left Sunday evening and with them their loyal but dejected supporters. They were sorely disappointed but perhaps no more so than the local fans and it is to be hoped they will re-

Care of Pearls.

One of the representatives of a famous jewelry firm gives a word of advice upon the preservation and treatment of pearls. Upon no account, he said, should they be locked up in a safe or other dark place for lengthy periods, since such treatment soon causes them to lose their "life" and become dull. If their fair owners find that for some reason or other they cannot wear them outside their garments they should make a point of wearing them underneath the dress next to the skin. Constant contact with the human skin gives to the stones light, luster, gloss and sheen. The best possible way to keep the pearls in a perfect state of preservation, as well as to prolong their life, is to wear them always, both by night and by day.—London Tit-Bits.

The Cruel Lie.

When Disraeli was nearing his end a young disciple said to him: "Master, what is the unpardonable sin? Is it not a lie?" The astute and subtle statesman, in the shadow of the grave, where he saw with the clearer vision, looked at the young man with deep, unfathomable eyes and answered: "No, a lie is not the unpardonable sin. The unpardonable sin is the cruel lie."

On the borders of that shadowy land where great things grow small and little things loom large on the horizon he had come to know that the crime that is not forgiven is the brutal instinct that impels us to wound, to embitter, to mortify.

She Liked Whist.

The modern whist fiend seems colorless beside that enthusiastic exponent of the game, Sarah Battle, whom Charles Lamb describes in his "Essays of Elia." He says she was "none of your lukewarm gamblers, your half and half players." To use her own language, all she desired was "a clear fire, a clean hearth and the rigor of the game."

A Slow Sleeper.

The servant girl in a suburban family was taken to task for oversleeping herself. "Well, ma'am," she said, "I sleep very slow, and so it takes me a long while to get a good night's rest."—Boston Transcript.

A Slight Mistake.

"The patient who was so badly cut on the head is mending." "I thought it was the doctor who was mending. I saw him sewing the patient up."—Baltimore American.

An Innocent Victim.

"This food problem is something awful!" exclaimed the querulous man. "Still harping on the high cost of living?" "No; my wife has decided to reduce her weight. I wouldn't care what food cost if she could only consent to buy it."—Washington Star.

Somewhat Alike.

D'Auber—I have come to the conclusion that art doesn't pay. Wigwag—I don't know about art, but I know lots of artists who don't.—Pittsburgh Press.

Not Always Certain.

Daughter—A certain young man sent me some flowers this morning. Mama—Don't say "a certain young man," my dear. There is none of 'em certain till you've got 'em.

PRESS PAYS TRIBUTE TO LATE REV. ARCHIBALD ROSS

Funeral services of the late Rev. Archibald Ross, D. D., LL. D., father of Rev. Frederick E. Ross, of this city, were held from the Bushwick Avenue Congregational church, Brooklyn, N. Y., and interment was made in the Evergreens Cemetery, Brooklyn.

In the death of Rev. Ross Brooklyn lost one of her best known and most loved citizens, and a man whose fame was by no means confined to Brooklyn, as indicated by the following brief history of his life, which is from the Newtown Register, of Thursday, July 23:

"The recent death of Rev. Archibald Ross, D. D., of Brooklyn, removes from the religious and literary life of the city a character of rare interest.

"He was best known to the residents of the old town of Newtown through the interesting and instructive articles which appeared from time to time in the Register, and by his self-sacrificing and noble religious work in the Middle Village. "When he came to that community some 25 years ago as pastor of the Methodist church, he found that church society in a very run-down condition and almost dead, so much so that the entire abandonment of the church was being seriously considered.

"Mr. Ross went to work with such vigor that he soon inspired others, and with him as their leader the church officers rallied to the rescue and the church was soon restored to its oldtime vigor. He labored for several years in Middle Village, and it is largely owing to his untiring efforts that the church is now in its present flourishing condition.

"Dr. Ross was born in Charlotte-town, Prince Edwards Island, in 1835. Educated in private and public schools in Canada, he studied theology in Queens' University, Kingston, Canada, and subsequently entered the ministry of the Presbyterian Church. Coming with his family to New York in 1876, he supplied several well known pulpits and became active in platform work.

"Never robust in health, he was compelled to renounce the work of the ministry, devoting his time intermittently to newspaper and literary work. He will be recalled as a frequent contributor to the Standard Union, Evening Post, Newtown Register, and other papers. His literary attainments were large, his insight almost unerring, his range broad and his style at once racy and luminous. If at times abstruse and remote, it was because of his marked philosophical bias.

"However, he possessed the rare faculty of translating philosophy into terms of life, and this was one of the secrets of his power as a writer. "He was of Highland Scotch descent, possessing all the fire and fervor of the Celt. Steeped in the spirit and letter of English poetry, he early acquired a style marked by purity and elevation of thought. His muse was refined and vigorous and his art never sank to the level of art for art's sake. To him poetry was the hand maid of religion, and what God had joined together he dare not put asunder.

"In 1904 he issued "Duty and Others Poems," a volume of surpassing poetic interest and power. On almost every page there are gems of truth fit to be inscribed among the classics of the English language. Some of the most noted poems in this volume are: "Duty," "Hope," "Charity," "Cygnus," "The Soul's Up-look," "The Response," "William of Orange," etc.

"A later volume was called "Life Sketches," a series of fascinating incidents, journeys afoot, anecdotes, etc. There is life and color on every page of the book and no one can read it without seeing the author possessed literary genius of a high order.

"Like most poetic temperments Dr. Ross was wanting in business capacity. The commercial spirit was foreign to his nature, and his talents were never properly recognized or capitalized. It is freely conceded that only this lack of a business faculty prevented him from acquiring large means.

"His 'Philosophy of Deep Breathing' was a well-matured utterance on the health value of proper breathing and walking exercises. Twenty-five years later a gentleman of the medical profession traversed the same ground—not exactly a pioneer.

"He was widely known as a pedestrian. Walking to him was a genuine pleasure, for many years it being his rule to walk from five to ten miles each day. The late Mayor Gaynor is said to have taken up the practice of extensive walking largely through Dr. Ross' influence.

"As poet, preacher and pedestrian he was an original and virile man. Perhaps his supreme aim for many years was to make others happy. Thousands of humble homes were gladdened by his visits. The little children loved him because of his unfeigned interest in them, and a notable incident of his funeral was a beautiful floral offering from his 'countless little friends.'

"He leaves behind him three children, Archibald Ross, Jr., Jesse E. Ross, and Rev. Frederick E. Ross, D. D., of the Ohio Methodist Episcopal Conference, a well known minister."

In Social Circles

The beautiful home of Mr. H. K. Stewart, "Spring Hill Farm" was the scene of a delightful surprise party upon the occasion of Mr. Stewart's birthday, Sunday evening.

The affair had been planned by Mrs. Stewart and sister, Miss Lora Martin, about twenty relatives and intimate friends invited and taking Mr. Stewart completely by surprise.

The evening was one of much pleasure, the large grounds and verandahs and the always cordial hospitality of the Stewart's so inviting that the guests lingered late in the evening and left wishing their host many happy returns of the day.

A delicious summer collation and a big bowl of punch proved refreshing.

Miss Margaret Fullerton of Columbus was an out of town guest.

Mrs. Will Morgan pleasantly entertained the girls of the Tau Mu Tau club in farewell to her guest, Miss Marie Mobley, of Hope Ark.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Thompson entertained with an elegant dinner on Sunday.

An orange and white color scheme was used in decoration.

Seated with the host and hostess were Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Baughn and son Roy, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hays and son Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Oth Dawson, Mr. S. D. Barr and Mr. Leonard Bass, of Austin.

Mr. and Mrs. Almer Hegler entertained with a very beautiful dinner at their home on the Chillicothe pike Sunday.

A flat design of American beauty roses and fern was singularly effective in table decorations. Seated with the host and hostess were Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Parrett, Mr. Roy Haglar and family, Mr. and Mrs. Val McCoy, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Howat and daughter Miss Jean, Miss Rose McLean, Miss Mary Robinson and guest Miss Katharine McKibben, of Cynthia, Ky., Misses Edith, Mable and Grace Pavey, of Columbus, Messrs Howard Haglar and Arthur Staibus, of Orange, etc.

"A later volume was called "Life Sketches," a series of fascinating incidents, journeys afoot, anecdotes, etc. There is life and color on every page of the book and no one can read it without seeing the author possessed literary genius of a high order.

"Like most poetic temperments Dr. Ross was wanting in business capacity. The commercial spirit was foreign to his nature, and his

THANKS FOR A FAVOR.

The Lady and the Baker and a Little Bit of a Surprise.

It was after dark, and the French baker was about to close his shop when the telephone bell rang.

"Mr. Owens?"

"Yes, ma'am."

"This is Mrs. Jimley of Hickorynut street."

"Yes, Mrs. Jimley."

"I am giving a supper tonight, and I discover that I need half a dozen more rolls. Could I trouble you to send them over?"

"I'm sorry, ma'am, but I haven't a roll left in the store nor even a loaf of bread. We are sold clear out tonight."

"This is very provoking," said Mrs. Jimley. "Are you sure you haven't anything that would do?"

"There isn't a thing in the place that I would care to sell you, ma'am. Hold on, though. There's a half dozen fresh rolls on my own supper table right now. I could let you have those if you think they would do. My kids can eat crackers instead. They'd rather, anyway."

"Those will do very nicely, Mr. Owens. Will you send them over soon, please?"

"Right away, ma'am. The boy has gone for the night, but I'll take them to you myself."

In a minute or two he stood on her front steps ringing the bell and feeling well pleased with himself that he could do some one a kindness.

Mrs. Jimley opened the door and took the packages from his hands. Then she said in icy tones:

"The next time you bring any goods here, Mr. Owens, I wish you would remember to ring the basement bell. I can't have tradesmen coming to the front door."—Newark News.

He Knew.

"If I were you," his wife said, "I'd go to that man and tell him exactly what I thought of him. He lied to you, and you ought to tell him that you know it. If I were you I'd let him know just how I despised him. I'd have the satisfaction of making him feel ashamed of himself."

"No, my dear," he replied, "you wouldn't do anything of the kind. If you were me you'd do just as I'm doing. This fellow weighs fifty pounds more than I do, and they tell me he's one of the best boxers in this town."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Wyoming Has Many High Mountains.
Wyoming has nine mountains exceeding 13,000 feet in height and of these three approach the 14,000 foot mark, according to the United States geological survey. They are Gannett peak, 13,785 feet; Grand Teton, 13,747 feet, and Fremont peak, 13,730 feet. Cloud peak, one of the most beautiful mountains in the state, is 13,730 feet above sea level. Besides these mountains Wyoming has thirty-one other named peaks upward of 12,000 feet in height and some forty unnamed mountains which exceed that altitude.

An interesting story might be written of the thousands of lofty unnamed mountain peaks of the west which are nearly double the height of the very highest mountains in the entire Appalachian mountain system in the eastern portion of the country. Colorado alone has dozens of mountains without name which are more than double the height of our most lofty eastern mountain.

DUBLIN IS AROUSED BARRACKS ATTACKED

By Associated Press.

Dublin, Ireland, July 25.—The city of Dublin and the greater part of Catholic Ireland was today in a state of excitement over yesterday's scene and the crowd was dispersed. The British army and the Irish Nationalists which resulted in the killing of four persons and the wounding of many others, forty of whom were still in hospitals today in a serious condition. Day dawned before the police succeeded in dispersing the crowd marching through the streets singing the patriotic songs and looking for the soldiers on whom to inflict vengeance. The crowd, finding that the soldiers had been ordered to remain in the barracks, attacked the royal barracks. Finally the mob battered down the gate of the barracks and fired a couple of shots. Then bugles were sounded, the police came on the scene and the crowd was dispersed. The Nationalist leaders took the most serious view of the affair and will demand reparation from the government. The lord mayor of Dublin today demanded in the interest of peace that the gates of the barracks be removed. Movements in the barracks indicated that preparations were being made to send the regiment elsewhere. The gates of the barracks were guarded by a strong force of police.

AUSTRIA EXPLAINS POSITION

Vienna, July 27.—A communication issued by the Austro-Hungarian foreign office today set forth the Austrian view of the Serbian reply to Austria's note demanding the cessation of the Pan-Serbian agitation and the punishment of those concerned in the assassination of Archduke Francis Ferdinand and his consort. The communication also gives the reasons for Austria's dissatisfaction with Serbia's reply. It follows in part: "The object of the Serbian note is to create the false impression that the Serbian government is prepared in great measure to comply with our demand. As a matter of fact, however, Serbia's note is filled with the spirit of dishonesty which clearly lets it be seen that the Serbian government is not seriously determined to put an end to the culpable tolerance it hitherto has extended to intrigues against the Austro-Hungarian monarch. In particular our demand for the participation of the Austro-Hungarian authorities in investigations to detect accomplices in the conspiracy on Serbian territory has been rejected while our request that measures be taken against that section of the Serbian press hostile to Austria-Hungary has been declined, and our wish that the Serbian government take the necessary measures to prevent the dissolved Austro-Serbian associations continuing their activity under another name and another form has not even been considered."

PLAYING GOLF.

The Game Demands Concentration, Yet Invites Sociability.

"One thing at a time, and that done well," is a very good rule in golf, as in many other lines of either work or play. I speak of this because golf is a game in which the relationship between players is a bit different from what it is in any other game that comes to my mind. It is a game which reaps the best results demands great concentration and yet a game which at times is played wonderfully well by those who seem to be paying scant attention to the task in hand.

The game one moment brings men together and next sends them apart, according to the direction in which they happen to hit the ball. Two men can start from the same tee, be two hundred or more yards apart after their drives and both be on the same green after playing their second shots.

It is a game which invites sociability and yet does not either demand or require it. One man can go out and play all by himself and thoroughly enjoy his game, or two men can go out, play a round together, neither speak a word between the first tee and the last green, yet both go into the clubhouse and declare they had seldom or never spent a more enjoyable time.—Francis Oulmet in St. Nicholas.

Over 3,000 Candy Makers

Are turning out Ohio candy, in one hundred and fourteen candy factories of the state. And candy making is by no means a leading industry of Ohio. Do you know what the biggest factories of the state ARE making, and how many men it takes to keep them going? How many proprietors, how many clerks, and how many wage earners? It is interesting to read about, and it might be pretty useful, too. You must do business, directly or indirectly, with some of those factories, and their industry concerns you.

Our OHIO ALMANAC, just issued for 1914, tells you all about the manufacturing business of Ohio, the business of farming, the schools, the religious organizations, the population, the platforms of the various political parties, the officials of the state and the counties, and about 100,000 other interesting facts about your state. Useful bits of information they are, too, that would cost you hundreds of dollars in time and cash to find out for yourself if we had not gathered it all together for you.

And we sell it to you for 25c at our office, or 30c by mail, postpaid.
